THE NEW YORK Stock Exchange will open tomorrow fifteen minutes later than usual, that brokers and ticker readers may have a chance to breathe at the office. Brokers and readers will probably look at each other with their fingers crossed, hoping that the present great market prosperity won't be another duplication of the phenomenon.

MEN HAVE SPENT most of their time on earth fighting and murdering each other. But the real job of the human race is to fight against and conquer nature.

Every canal dug, desert irrigated, swamp drained, is a victory in the really important war.

A FURTHER FORWARD step will be taken during the eclipse on Saturday. Those that remain on earth may and may not see the eclipse. That depends on the clouds. But science has built the flying machine, and will take scientists up above the clouds. There they will study the eclipse, regardless of weather conditions, and send news of it by wireless to the people below. Who would have predicted that thirty years ago?

THE PREDICTION would have seemed as preposterous as it seems now to predict that the entire surface of this earth will one day be as completely covered and under control as the finest park, or to predict that men will regulate the earth's climate, using extreme heat as a matter to melt the ice at the poles.

Suppose everything that we can imagine he can do.

In Star Lodge, one of the great flying scientists, detects on the eye of man was by the radio machine. In combination with electrical power it causes distance, through the air, actually throws out pulses of matter going at a rate of thousands of miles a second.

DEAR YOUNG LADIES of Vassar College, with beauty, tall breakneck, nimble feet, and curious minds, tell what they think of tobacco. Four hundred and three-three say they like cigarettes, 324 never smoke.

It matter what you may think of women smoking, how would it answer this question?

Which will be married first, the 197 girls that smoke cigarettes, or the 221 that don't smoke cigarettes? And which will make the best mothers?

ROMANCE OF the olden times comes from Bombay. The Rajah's favorite Nautch girl was named Mumtaz Begum. Ten is tonight in that name now. Abdul Baura, the rich merchant, got the girl. Pathans loved by the enraged Rajah murdered the merchant in his automobile, slashed the face of the Nautch girl, wounded others. The Rajah almost as good as the Boston fights.

LORENZ KOENIG, aged seventy-seven, devotes his working hours to stacking shingles in a lumber yard at Omaha. He is worth $125,000, but goes on packing shingles. "If I quit, I'd die," he says, and hell give the money to his children. Perhaps the $25 of hard work hasn't got a kick a hold on them as it has on him.

AND, WE KNOW that the rich will be free, and that's an end of it," said Samuel Johnson. But is the will free?

Your becomes of freedom of the will when habit has such a hold upon us?

After stacking shingles for years Mr. Koenig feels that he has got on stacking shingles, although he has money enough to take him to see the Great Pyramids of Egypt, the Taj Mahal in India, the Great Wall of China and the Cheshire Cheese chop house in London.

MAINE CITY IS SWEPT BY FIRE

Thirty Homeless, Three Injured, as Flames Spread in Rumford

Rumford, Me., Jan. 23.—With the thermometer at 20 below zero and a fifty-mile gale sweeping down from the northwest, Rumford was threatened with destruction early today when conflagrations broke out simultaneously at opposite ends of the town.

While the entire Rumford fire department was fighting a fire which destroyed the $50,000 mansion of Dr. Aldot Mills, at one end of the town, a disastrous fire broke out in the closely congested residential district at Smith's Crossing. Just outside the corporate limits at the opposite end of the town from the burning Mills mansion.

Volunteer workers rushed to the Smith Crossing section and in the bitter cold fought the flames with snow shovels, piling snow high on the roofs of the buildings in the path of the flames.

THIRTY HOMELESS.

Three residents of the town, all members of the volunteer fire department, are in the hospital with hands and feet frozen as a result of their heroic efforts.

When the flames were finally checked, long after dawn, thirty persons were homeless.

THIS MAN REALLY KNOWS BOSTON HAS A CROOK

While the Mayor and Police Commissioner were busy writing answers to each other in the matter of the crime situation, Edgar J. Rawtelle of No. 55 East Springfield street hit upon the discovery that there really is a crime wave.

Rawtelle told the police his contribution came when he was jostled on a car and $29 was deducted from his pocket.

Canton, O., Jan. 23.—Tong warfare broke out in Canton today. Moy Quong, forty, Chinese laundryman, was shot to death. He failed to heed a telegram that another faction had marked him for death.

HOW ECLIPSE WILL APPEAR TO BOSTON TOMORROW

LOOKING DOWN STATE STREET OVER CUSTOM HOUSE TOWER

The eclipse will start at approximately 8 a. m., and the above picture gives a fairly accurate idea of the phenomenon 15 at will follow until its end. Boston will see approximately 99.100 of the total eclipse visible in Rhode Island.

ORDER OUT EXTRA POLICE

Commissioner Warns Men to Be Alert During Dark Morning Tomorrow

The order went forth today from the police commissioner to his men that in no way is the eclipse tomorrow to be allowed to eclipse the police department, come what may—be it darkness, a crime wave or the Mayor.

This is considered a coup and a hole-in-one by the Constabulary, as against the Mayor, inasmuch as the Mayor thus far has given no sign or order in recognition of the scientific phenomena.

Hundreds of special armed guards will be employed in Boston banks tomorrow to guard against hold-ups and thefts during the period of semi-darkness caused by the eclipse.

None of the savings banks trust companies and national banks will close, but all will curtail business during the darkness. In some instances vaults will not be opened until after the eclipse has taken place.

National banks are prevented by law from closing, while the Savings Bank Association has taken no action affecting the banks under its supervision other than to advise the employing of special guards.

Here is the Police Commissioner's order, as relayed to all stations by Police Superintendent Crowley:

"According to newspaper reports the city of Boston will be in partial darkness from about 9 a. m. to 10:30

NEWPORT GIRL MYSTERIOUSLY VANISHES

Newport, R. I., Jan. 23.—In the space of one hour and with not the slightest clue to her fate, Miss Mary Gleason, twenty-seven-year-old nurse in a wealthy Newport family, dropped out of sight, after failing to keep an appointment with her sweetheart.

The strange case of the vanished nurse has baffled the police completely.

There was no incentive for her disappearing of her own accord, as far as the police can learn. Her clothing and all her belongings are in their places in the well-appointed home where she was attending a young patient.

"I'll be back in an hour and a half," she told her patient on Monday night, when she left for a downtown street corner to meet George P. Henderson, with whom she has been keeping company. "If anything is to be done, leave it. I'll be right back."

It was the last seen of her. Henderson, after waiting for several hours in vain, went home. When he did not hear from her later, he inquired and discovered that she had not returned to work. Then he notified the police.

On her way back from her appointment, the girl had intended visiting a local church for a moment

A cold wave accompanied by a strong northwest wind, on the heels of the unseasonably warm temperatures which followed the blizzard, today brought suffering to Boston and New England.

From a maximum of 44 above zero, reached yesterday, the mercury skidded sharply and dropped suddenly, reaching a minimum official mark of 2 above at 8 o'clock this morning in Boston. There it stayed for four hours.

The icy blasts quickly froze the slush and water created by the shoe thaw and made hard going for motors and pedestrians alike.

Below zero temperatures were common in the outlying suburbs early today. Melrose and Chelsea had readings of 4 below; it was 3 below at Lincoln, 2 below at Lexington and Concord, and 2 below at Arlington, Burlington and Bedford.

The area of the cold wave extended outside New England, and low temperatures brought intense suffering in New York State. At Watertown, N. Y., it was fifteen below, a drop of fifty-two degrees in eighteen hours.

No immediate relief is in sight for today, according to the forecast. The cold and icy winds will continue, he says, but possibly by tomorrow afternoon it will begin to warm up.

It was 12 below zero at Biddeford, Me., this morning, a drop of 45 degrees since sunset yesterday. Portland reported four below with much lower temperatures outside the city limits.

The sun brought no warmth to Manchester, N. H., where the temperature dropped four degrees to nine below zero three hours after sunrise. The biting wind made traffic movement dangerous.

$500,000 Fire in Troy

Troy, N. Y., Jan. 23.—A fire today in the heart of the Troy business section was brought under control after a five-hour battle. More than a score of persons were rescued. The loss was placed at $500,000.

Boy Is Bitten as He Battles Red Fox in Own Yard

Lewiston, Me., Jan. 23.—Ten-year-old Armand Gagne, son of Edward Gagne, member of the Legislature, was bitten twice while battling a red fox in his father's barnyard.

The fox was shot by Armand's uncle.

The boy saw the fox raiding the henroop and tried to catch him. The fox slashed out with his teeth and paws, breaking Armand's hold and running under the barn.

Armand then called his uncle, who killed the fox with a charge of buckshot.

SAFE BROKEN; BURGLARS GET NOTHING

Safe-breakers worked for two hours early today to force the safe in the office of the N. E. Felt Roofing Company, No. 421 West First street, South Boston, only to find they had their labor for their pains.

The firm makes a practice of banking its cash each day, so that the only valuables in the safe, which were tossed aside in disgust by the crackmen, were twenty 2-cent stamps.

Inspector Joseph E. Rollins, fingerprint expert from police headquarters, found some well-defined fingerprints, and experts to make at least one arrest shortly.

The burglars effected an entrance by smashing the locks on three doors and making their way to the office on the second floor. They started work on the front of the old-fashioned safe, knocking off the knob and attempting, without success, to force the door. Then the safe was turned and a hole bored in one side. Through that hole the cement lining was pried out and the metal skin ripped off. When the office was opened at the usual hour the contents of the safe, consisting largely of books and papers, were strewn around the floor.

3 CHILDREN DIE IN FLAMES; 3 ARE SAVED

Charlestown, W. Va., Jan. 23.—Three children of Mr. and Mrs. William Massey, ranging in age from eight to seventeen, were burned to death when fire destroyed two homes and a store at Chelyan, twelve miles from here.

Three other children were saved when Massey threw them to the ground from the second story of their home, after which he and Mrs. Massey leaped. They escaped with slight injuries.

STONE'S NOMINATION BLOCKED AGAIN

Washington, Jan. 23.—Confirmation of the nomination of Atty.-Gen. Stone to be an associate justice of the Supreme Court is being blocked in the Senate to permit further inquiry into a case in which he acted as counsel for the executors of J. Pierpont Morgan. Senator Overman of North Carolina has been joined in his request for delay by other Senators, including Walsh of Montana and Heflin of Alabama.

COAL OPERATOR DECRIES STUDENTS' 'SACRIFICE'

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 23.—Announcement that students at Brookwood Labor College, at Katonah, N. Y., had given up desserts to provide aid for striking miners in West Virginia, was called a "clever publicity stunt," by John Laing, president of the Kanawha Coal Operations Association, in a statement in which he questioned whether there were 50,000 people living in artists' colonies, as was claimed by union officials.

PROBATION FOR MAN WITH SEVEN CHILDREN

Salem, Jan. 23.—In the Superior Criminal Court, Assistant District Attorney Edward S. Syll objected to the recommendation of Chief of Police Burchee that Joseph A. Goudreault of Lynn be fined $100 after the jury found him guilty of driving while under the influence of liquor. Goudreault, who is out of employment and has seven children, was unable to pay his fine when sentenced and was serving 300 days in Salem Jail. He was placed on probation.

ECLIPSE WILL BE VISIBLE TO 20,000,000 PERSONS IN THE U. S.

a. m., Saturday, January 24, 1925, owing to eclipse of the sun.

"I am directed by the Police Commissioner to instruct division commanders to take every precaution during the period of darkness for the prevention of crime and to see that all routes in their respective divisions are properly covered by sergeants and patrolmen.

"All men who are on duty the first half of tonight will report again for duty at 5:30 o'clock in the morning and will go to places assigned them by their captains, until such time as the eclipse and darkness are over.

"Division commanders will also instruct route officers to notify, some time today, all shopkeepers and proprietors of buildings to keep their lights going during the dark period.

"Division commanders will also instruct officers to be vigilant and observing during the time of darkness and to make every effort to prevent the commission of crime and to take and apprehend offenders if crime is committed."

20,000,000 in America to View the Eclipse

New Haven, Ct., Jan. 23.—Final suggestions to the 20,000,000 Americans who are in a position to see the solar eclipse tomorrow were given by Professor Ernest W. Brown of the Yale Astronomical Laboratory, as chairman of the committee on public information of the American Astronomical Society.

He emphasized directions on the following points:

1.—Watching the tiny nick in the Sun about 8 a. m.

2.—Beginning to watch for the total phase about 9 a. m.

3.—Watching the light bands of the Earth or on the side of white painted building, about 9:10.

4.—Seeing the narrow crescent of the Sun visible narrow and break up into separate points about 9:12.

5.—Turning to the West and watching the dark shadow sweep from the Northwest across the country about 9:13.

6.—Turning back to the Sun as soon as the shadow has passed, and watching the Corona.

7.—As totality passes watching the red flames around the black edges of the moon.

8.—Watching the stars when the Sun is obscured and, especially, the planets, Jupiter, Venus and Mercury.

Dr. Brown's detailed suggestions follow.

In the eastern part of the country the sun will rise a little before 7:30. If a look at it be taken about 8 minute a tiny nick in one edge may be noticed. Even at the low altitude it is not advisable to search for this nick without a piece of smoked glass or darkened film.

As time goes on the nick will gradually spread into a circular bite which will cover more and more of the sun. Nothing special will happen for an hour except this gradual covering up of the face of the sun.

The time to begin to watch is about 9 o'clock. The first appearance is on the earth and seems to be a little or nothing to do with the eclipse.

It is gradually getting darker, and sometime before 9:10 o'clock, or perhaps a little later, a queer appearance will be noticed on the ground. Bands of light and shadow a foot or so apart will be seen chasing one another on the ground. If there is snow present they ought to be seen rather easily. As the sun is rather low at the time it may be better to look for them on the walls of a white house.

But the spectator must not be disappointed if he does not see them. They do not always appear. Sometimes they come ten minutes before the sun is completely covered, at other times a minute or only a few seconds.

2,000,000 to Observe Eclipse in New England

Tomorrow is Eclipse Day.

The opportunity afforded once in about 100 years of witnessing the sun eclipsed by the moon passing between it and the earth, shadowing the sun and bringing darkness as of night, will be availed of by many millions of persons in the United States.

Between the hours of 8 and 10:30 tomorrow morning eyes of more than 2,000,000 New Englanders will be lifted toward the heavens to witness the phenomenon.

Business will be suspended generally in places directly in the 100-mile-wide path of the eclipse, which extends from Duluth, Minnesota, to the southwestern section of the New England coast from near Stamford, Connecticut, to Buzzard's Bay, Massachusetts, and then out to sea.

In other cities and towns within fifty miles of the extreme edges of the "totality shadow" the "greatest show of the generation" will be witnessed when the Sun's light is cut off by the Moon's passage in varying degrees of totality.

Hundreds of thousands of residents of Greater Boston—those who are unable to join throngs who will journey in special trains to points within the totality path, will see their fill of the phenomenon from the streets and from house-tops.

Westerly Prepared to Handle 20,000 Visitors

Westerly, R. I., Jan. 23.—Tomorrow's total eclipse of the sun has put this town squarely on the map.

The place has awakened from its Winter slumbers and all is bustling activity. This, because Westerly will be one of the most favored spots from which to watch this celestial phenomenon, as the town will be in the zone of totality.

20,000 TO WATCH.

For this reason, from 5,000 to 8,000 visitors are expected early tomorrow. Isn't that enough to make any town of 15,000 inhabitants sit up and take notice? Especially in Winter! It is predicted that more than 20,000 persons will view the eclipse from two hills here.

But tomorrow will be a sort of

WHERE TO VIEW THE ECLIPSE AT WESTERLY

MISS EVA HEBB

Girl Scouts under the leadership of Miss Eva Hebb (upper left) will give their services to caring for thousands of women who will go to Westerly to view the eclipse.

What Scientists Seek During the Eclipse

Among the features of the eclipse which will engage the attention of scientists are:

Tests of Einstein theory of relativity; measurement of light from sun's corona; possible discovery of new comets; observations on variable movements of the moon and its exact diameter; effect of phenomenon on radio; search for planets between mercury and the sun; effect of the eclipse on the magnetism of the earth and the electricity of the atmosphere.

Old Home Week here merely because the sun's surface will be completely obscured for two minutes, beginning at 9:13 a. m. Every hotel room has been reserved for tonight by out-of-town guests, mostly Bostonians. No raise in rates has been made.

"Now, if the eclipse was to come in Summer," said Frank W. Coy, chairman of Westerly Board of Trade committee in charge of tomorrow's activities, "we wouldn't have trouble at all in accommodating everybody. Please remember that Westerly is very largely a Summer town.

VISITORS MUST "ROUGH IT."

"We will do the best we can to accommodate everybody, but the visitors who come here must make up their minds to 'rough it.'

"When officials of the New Haven Railroad first decided to run a special train here from Boston they asked our Board of Trade if it could accommodate 900 visitors. We said we could.

"Since then there has been such a demand for tickets that we expect between 2,000 and 4,000 persons to come here on special trains from Boston and Providence. We also expect as many more will come in automobiles. So you see what a problem we have to cope with.

AUTOS AND TRUCKS.

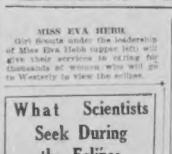
"We have asked every inhabitant of Westerly who has an automobile to assist us in carrying visitors from the railroad station to the hill on Foster's Farm, Beach street, a mile and a half from the depot. There will be no charge for this service, but as all the special trains will land their passengers within an hour of the time when the period of totality occurs, it is going to be a big job to handle. For this reason we expect we will be able to convey to Foster's Farm only the passengers who arrive on the first special train.

CLEAR BALL PARK.

"Clear ball park, two-thirds of a mile from the railroad station, of snow, as well as the streets leading thereto. This park is 145 feet above sea level and will accommodate many thousands of people. Boy Scouts and state Guard Guides will assist in directing strangers.

"At Foster's Farm and at the Westerly railroad station temporary booths will be erected and hot coffee and sandwiches or doughnuts will be served at a low price.

"As chairman of the committee in charge of the eclipse day activities, I advise all persons coming to Westerly by automobile to go directly to Watch Hill, 14½ miles from Westerly depot, as I consider it the best viewpoint



FRANK W. COY.

A committee of the Board of Trade, directed by Frank W. Coy (upper right), has arranged to entertain the eclipse throngs. The committee has arranged to have trucks carry visitors to points of vantage.

Map shows best routes to points of vantage from which the eclipse can be seen.

CUTTER TAMPA READY TO VIEW ECLIPSE

By THE RADIO EDITOR.

On Board the United States Coast Guard Cutter Tampa, Jan. 23.—The Coast Guard cutter Tampa sailed from the Charlestown Navy Yard at 4 p. m. Thursday to make tests in radio broadcasting and to study the effect of the eclipse of the sun on radio receiving and transmitting conditions.

Work had not been completed on the portable broadcasting station when leaving the dock so WTAT did not come on the air until 10 p. m. last night.

The sea is washing upon the afterdeck and on the wheels of the truck in which the radio controls are located. The cutter is rolling and tossing, but the seventeen guests and operators on board are enjoying themselves.

They represent the Boston newspapers and a telegraph company. All press reports and news is being relayed through the navy yard.

Captain Henry G. Fisher will talk for a few minutes when broadcasting begins and then the regular schedule will follow.

The passengers on board the Tampa include John G. Barrett, Eastern Amateur Radio Association; Lewis Whitcomb, Boston Edison Company; Walter E. Myers, Boston Edison Company; Leon B. Sawyer, Boston Edison Company; Clarence V. Purssell, Boston Edison Company.

Elevated to Run Extra Service Tomorrow

To accommodate passengers desiring to connect with early trains at South Station for points where the eclipse may be best viewed, the Boston Elevated Railway will run extra service tomorrow morning.

Trains will leave Harvard square subway station at 8:06, 8:16, 8:26 and 8:34 a. m., arriving at South Station ten minutes later.

In the Dorchester tunnel trains will leave Andrew square at 8:24 and 8:30, arriving at South Station five minutes later. There will be service from Forest Hills via Atlantic avenue at 8:06 and 8:20, the same trains leaving Dudley street at 8:14 and 8:28, and arriving at 8:21 and 8:35.

From North Station shuttle car platform trains will depart at 8:24 and 8:34, arriving at South Station at 8:34 and 8:40. From Sullivan square trains will leave for Washington street tunnel at 8:18 and 8:24, arriving at North station at 8:24 and 8:30 and at Winter station at 8:34 and 8:34 a. m.

Will Take Photographs in Sky

Cleveland, Jan. 23.—Raymond A. Gordon, secretary of the Cleveland Astronomical Society, hopes to photograph the eclipse from an airplane which will fly to Dunkirk, N. Y., into the path of totality and rise to an altitude of 10,000 feet.

MISS ESTHER BARBER.

Another of the Westerly Girl Scouts who will help to care for visitors.

or two of meditation, she had said earlier.

All railroad employes on trains out of Newport have been questioned, all taxi and bus drivers have been interrogated and the railroad and New York boat ticket sellers have been asked if they remembered a girl of her description.

But in each direction, the sleuths have been confronted with a stone wall and Miss Gleason has dropped from sight as completely as if the earth had opened and swallowed her.

The police describe her as an attractive blonde, weighing 140 pounds and five feet six inches in height. They have no knowledge of how she was dressed.

WARRANTS SOUGHT IN LIQUOR LABEL CASE

Warrants for three arrests were to be sought in Roxbury Court today, as a result of Wednesday's raid on the New England Bottling Company, at Nos. 12 and 15 Hayden street, where Sergeant Daniel J. Hines and Officers Higgins, Garrett, Welby, Roche, Daley and Furtin, seized 1,500,000 fraudulent liquor labels.

THOMAS E. BROWN.

Chief of police of Westerly has ordered the entire police force mobilized to guard against pickpockets in the crowds. The force will be augmented by a company of State guard.

BOSTON STORE TO BE CLOSED FOR ECLIPSE

Employes of several Boston stores will be enabled to join the throngs who will watch the action of the sun tomorrow, as a result of decision by the Retail Trade Board to open at 10 o'clock instead of 8 a. m.

Among those which will remain closed until after the eclipse are Chandler & Co., C. F. Hovey Company, Gilchrist Company, Filene's Sons Company, Wm. Filene's Sons Company, Jordan Marsh Co., R. H. White Co., R. H. Stearns & Co., Houghton Dutton Co., Conrad & Co., Shattuck Slattery Company, F. F. Fitzgerald Company, Peter L. Flynn Company and F. F. Bosger's Sons.

EINSTEIN TESTS TO BE MADE FROM BALLOON

Geneva, N. Y., Jan. 23.—Efforts to determine the value of Einstein's theory of relativity will be made from in a balloon during the eclipse of the sun tomorrow, according to Professor William J. Hussey, heading the University of Rochester eclipse expedition, and member of the physics department of Hobart College, it was announced today by President Murray Burton of Hobart.

PHILLIPS' FIANCEE GONE

Girl Holdup Victim Is Ill

Jack Dempsey's Own Thrilling Story of Life

Beginning the Amazing Story of the Sunday School Boy Who Fought His Way Into Fame, Through Fifty-one Romances in Bohemia and "The Four Hundred" to the Role of Self-Made Millionaire

Preface

By W. B. SEABROOK

The most famous modern statue in the world is called "The Thinker."

It was done by the great Rodin and stands at the entrance to the Pantheon, in Paris.

The title suggests the professional philosopher—lofty thoughts, immense learning, highly developed brain power.

But the statue itself tells a different story.

It is the statue of a primitive man, almost a cave-man, with a brain tremendously developed by struggles and combats that left him no time for contemplative thought.

Brain Developing

As the statue portrays him, this man has been forced by circumstances to use his brain at last. Something has happened—after a series of things have happened—which force on him the necessity to think.

It comes hard at first. But it comes. He has a brain—a wonderful brain that can develop, as his muscles have developed—and the process is well under way.

The parallel is not perfect, but something of this sort has happened to Jack Dempsey, and as a result of it Jack Dempsey has become—quite outside the prize ring—one of the most interesting characters and one of the most surprising psychological studies in the world today.

A little more than ten years ago, Jack Dempsey was poor, unknown, a day laborer, a miner, a pick-and-shovel man at times a hobo—in short, a nobody.

Today he is famous, rich, courted by beautiful women, acclaimed by the crowds, cheered in the world's greatest cities, lives and loves abroad.

Ten years ago, he rode the railroad rods and didn't know where his next square meal was coming from.

Today he rides in his own Rolls-Royce, with a valet, and does what he likes, at the Ritz.

I am one who has known such extremes in so short a time, who has lived to change, and forced to think.

And the transformation of Jack Dempsey is a psychological study that has had few parallels in the history of the world.

Part of the old Jack Dempsey legend is left—the legend which the sporting writers immediately after he defeated Willard, in a still boyish, likeable and strangely unspoiled.

But how simple as they have made him seem—and there is nothing either childish or simple about his psychology or character in life today.

What is the answer to it all?" he has been forced to ask himself, like Rodin's "Thinker," and being neither a reader nor a thinker, he has slowly formulated a crude, but forceful philosophy of his own.

Part of what follows in this series of articles will be a further set down record IN JACK DEMPSEY'S OWN WORDS—as told to this writer in many and varied conversations, and illuminated by hitherto unpublished adventures, incidents and experiences—of what the world champion heavyweight prize-fighter thinks of himself and what he thinks of life.

By JACK DEMPSEY

(As told by W. B. Seabrook.)

CHAPTER I.

The midnight express from New York is rolling into Buffalo. Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion of the world, is aboard the train.

Conductors and porters spread the news, and are pleased as he is makes.

"Yes, sir," says a porter, "he's in the stateroom two cars back. His giant man friends sat up late and played cards, but he went to bed before we left Grand Central."

The train pulls into the Buffalo station. An enormous crowd lines the platform. The champion appears on the car platform. "There he is!" yells a kid, and the crowd cheers and shouts. Policemen—a whole squad of them—make a path through the crowd, and the Dempsey party is escorted to two waiting limousines.

Four motorcycle cops start their machines roaring, horns honk, and off we whir to the Hotel Statler.

More crowds, more cheering. Buzzing and craning of necks in the lobby.

The manager, smiling, important, in a frock-coat, welcomes the champion. He is escorted to the royal suites—a superb living room with windows overlooking the beautiful bay—Louis Quinze furniture—bedrooms, baths, private hallways.

There are five people in the party; Jack Kearns, who is hobbling over a slowly mending sprained ankle; Damon Runyon, sporting writer, who has been lured to Buffalo by rumors of a ferocious white English setter pup; "Good Time Charlie" Ebbets and George Murphy, pinochle players extraordinary and "ring."

In addition there is Jerry. Jerry spends his life refuting the theory that no man can be a hero to his valet. He worships the champion.

The transformation of Jerry, the Greek, former wrestler, ex-Sandow's assistant, into Jerry, valet-de-chambre and gentleman's gentleman to Mr. William Harrison Dempsey, would be an interesting study in itself.

Jerry is now engaged in ordering breakfast for the champion and those of us who haven't breakfasted on the train. Mr. Dempsey has a glass of orange juice, a small pot of coffee and a couple of thin buttered toast. He is not a heavy eater.

After breakfast the champion invites me into his bedroom for a little talk, while Jerry unpacks—two big wardrobe trunks and a couple of Russian leather handbags. It's interesting to watch Jerry's deft fingers shaking out the contents of them. Satin-lined dinner coats, patent leather pumps glistening on wooden boot-trees, double and single-breasted suits from the best tailor on Fifth avenue, handkerchiefs by the dozen, shirts of finest silk and English broadcloth, knickers and golf shirts, gorgeous scarfs and neckties from Charvet in Paris.

FIANCEE OF PHILLIPS VANISHES

Miss Nugent Disappears From Hotel; Millionaire Also Missing

Who is Margaret Jane Nugent, the expectant bride of Ralph Burr Phillips, Newton millionaire?

This is the question that has Boston's smart set guessing.

When marriage intentions were filed at Newton City Hall by the millionaire suitor, Miss Nugent's place of residence was given as New York, her age as 23 and her occupation as "at home."

More than a week ago, an attractive young woman registered at the Lenox Hotel as Margaret J. Nugent, of New York. She told persons about the hotel she knew Mr. Phillips—she confided in some casual friends that she was to marry the former head of the American Steam Gauge and Valve Company.

DON'T KNOW FIRST NAME.

The girl told a reporter, however, that she did not know Mr. Phillips' first name.

Yesterday, Miss Nugent checked out of the hotel and has disappeared. So has Mr. Phillips.

When the filing of the marriage intentions became public, it was stated that the prospective bride of the millionaire was a student at Boston University.

There is a Miss Margaret E. Nugent of Stoughton at Boston University, a junior in the college of liberal arts, but this young woman never so much as heard of the Newton millionaire. There is no other Miss Nugent registered at the university.

The Miss Nugent who was stopping at the Lenox hotel, told her friends her home was in the Bronx, and that she was a former chorus girl.

At the same time, James A. Nugent, a truck driver of the Bronx, New York, father of nineteen-year-old Margaret Jane Nugent, declared that his daughter wasn't going to marry that "roll guy Phillips."

OPPOSES PHILLIPS.

"Why that guy Phillips is older than I am. He is forty-six, and I'm forty-two. He's got three kids already," declared the irate father. "If Margaret is going to marry anybody in the Phillips family, it will be the boy Ralph, and not the old man."

The elder Nugent, who does nothing for a living but handle a five-ton truck for the Nots Paper Company of the Bronx, looked rather impressive as he discoursed on the situation.

"Margaret is supposed to be in Bronx studying. We've been trying to see that she gets some sort of education. She thinks she has a career," he said. "She was here a few months ago and didn't tell us anything about getting married in a hurry. We know this guy Phillips and his son, and we've been led to believe that she had a crush on the young Phillips and not the old man."

"She only spoke of Phillips twice and both times it was the young Phillips that was mentioned.

GIRL ONLY NINETEEN.

"Margaret is only nineteen, and if she said that she was twenty-three in filling those marriage intentions, she lied," Nugent said. "I can understand her falling in love with young Phillips. He's a mighty nice chap from what I hear. But the old man—that's bunk to me."

"What I will do," continued Nugent, is find out just what is at the bottom of all this and believe me I'm going to break loose if anything is wrong. As soon as Mrs. Nugent rooks off I'm going to find out what's what and if I've got anything to say about this business of marrying. Margaret is going to marry Ralph B. Jr., and not Ralph B. Sr."

STRUCK BY TAXICAB AND IS NEAR DEATH

Bart Connolly, fifty-five, of No. 203 West Broadway, South Boston, is on the danger list at the City Hospital as the result of injuries suffered early today, when hit by a taxicab.

Connolly, who is employed by the Boston Elevated Railway Company, was cleaning out a switch in Broadway, near the South Boston bridge, when he was hit by a taxicab driven by Morris Shuman of No. 24 Merrell street, Dorchester.

At the City Hospital it was found he was suffering from a compound fracture of both bones of the lower right leg, a fractured rib and abrasions about the head and body.

MISS KATHERINE DE VALL

Burglar who chatted with the Dorchester girl after binding her and Mrs. Agnes E. Prescott, her aunt, in the latter's apartment at No. 15 Queensberry street, is being traced by a rogue's gallery photograph in which Miss De Vall sees a resemblance to the intruder.

OVERCOME BY SHOCK OF VISIT

Searches Rogues' Gallery for Clew to Sociable Thief Who Looted Flat

A rogues' gallery photo may be the undoing of the Back Bay's sociable burglar. One of his latest victims has seen a resemblance between the man who invaded her apartment and the original of the photo.

Feeling, on Tuesday night, that it would be best, on account of the snowstorm, to spend the evening with her aunt, pretty Catherine De Vall, of No. 2 Stonehurst street, Dorchester, remained away from home for the first time in four years and had the most exciting few hours of her life.

After going to dinner with her aunt, Mrs. Agnes E. Prescott, they arrived at seven-thirty at the latter's apartment, No. 15 Queensberry street, Back Bay, and both retired about ten-thirty.

Miss DeVall was awakened shortly after midnight by a man who was pointing the muzzle of a revolver in her face and who gently but firmly informed her that if she made an outcry he would shoot. He then bound and gagged her.

She remembers the bandit asking her where he could find something to eat, and also where he could find cigarettes and liquor.

When the man departed he took her fur coat, jewelry and money to the value of $160.

"Tis fitful," she sobbed, "that this terrible thing should have happened to aunt and me."

Miss DeVall has, for the past four years, been employed at a song and gift shop on Massachusetts avenue. Since the time of the burglary she has been in a state of nervous collapse.

TOWN IS SWEPT BY FIRE AT BELOW ZERO

sons were homeless, their household effects and their clothing destroyed, while the Nile mansion was a mass of smouldering ruins.

The twin fires constituted the worst catastrophe Rumford has ever suffered.

The intense cold spell which has gripped this section for the past three days was made worse by the gale which swept down from the north woods, making it almost impossible to remain outdoors without suffering.

FIREMEN USE SNOW.

The fire at the mansion of Dr. Nile started from a defective flue. Neighbors sounded the alarm and the entire town fire-fighting department responded.

All water lines were frozen and the firemen were compelled to use snow in their vain efforts to save the structure.

While the firemen were engaged, flames broke out in the wooden dwelling at Smith's Crossing.

Camille Chamanford, a mill worker, discovered the fire at Smith's Crossing and gave the alarm.

The fire broke out in the home of Thomas Derelitti and when members of the family were aroused the structure was aflame from cellar to garret.

FIREMEN IN HOSPITAL.

Jennie Derelitti, fifteen years old, aroused from her sleep, rushed from the building to find that her ten-year-old sister, Mary, was still in the burning structure.

The older girl, without a thought of her own safety, rushed into the doorway which was almost a solid wall of flames, made her way to the second floor and a few moments later, exhausted and almost unconscious, she staggered into the biting cold with her unconscious sister's form clasped in her arms.

The fire next spread to the home of Nicholas Dinali and from there to the home of D. Lavergna. All three dwellings were destroyed.

Cafe Blaze Drives 60 Hotel Guests Into Cold

Two fires in Boston early today drove sixty hotel guests, hurriedly dressed, into the freezing atmosphere and caused a total damage of $16,000.

Fire in the restaurant of Michael Moutas, adjoining the hostelry, menaced the Hotel Savoy at No. 461 Columbus avenue, South End. Smoke from the blaze filled the hallways of the hotel, while the night clerk and bellboys made the rounds of the rooms arousing the sleepers and warning them of the danger.

Sixty guests donned scanty garments and rushed to the street while firemen fought a stubborn blaze which caused a damage of $1,000. The hotel is a five-story building.

The second fire destroyed a section of the four-story factory of the S. M. Howe Company at Nos. 503-523 Medford street, Charlestown. Flames broke out in what is known as the lacquer works of the building, used for the manufacture of stoves, fifteen minutes after Patrick J. Carney, a night watchman, had made his rounds. Loss was estimated at $15,000.

PHALANX CLUB LINKED IN MURDER

The Phalanx Club, in Washington street, Roxbury, which has been much in the limelight during the past several days, is now linked by the Roxbury Crossing police with the murder of Austin Green, Roxbury athlete.

Green, a prominent semi-professional baseball pitcher, was found dying in the doorway of the house next to his home, at No. 46 Hillside street, Roxbury. His skull was fractured, his face was badly beaten and his hands and feet were frozen. He died after being removed to the City Hospital.

Two close friends of the athlete are now being held by the Roxbury Crossing police, but the authorities are inclined to doubt that they had any part in the trouble that befell Green.

One of the young men held by the police in connection with Green's death admits that he walked with the athlete as far as the doorway where Green was later found dying, by his father.

SOCIETY GIRL TO WED BOSTON CLUBMAN

MISS ELEANOR GOODWIN

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Goodwin of Commonwealth avenue will become the bride of Francis H. Cummings, Harvard graduate, and widely known Boston clubman.

PASSPORT OFFICE FOR BOSTON IS ASSURED

Establishment of a passport office in Boston, as advocated by the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, is now assured. The association received telegraphic advices from Washington that the appropriation for maintaining the bureau had passed Congress.

The sum of $10,848 has been provided for the purpose. It will prove a great convenience for people who travel from Boston and New England and are now compelled to apply for passports in New York or Washington, with consequent delay.

HARVARD GRAD URGES BAKER'S WORK GO ON

CURE HICCOUGH WITH A SERUM FROM HORSES

Several Patients Given Quick Relief by the Discovery of Rochester Doctor

Rochester, Minn., Jan. 23.—How whbits were infected with hiccough by the injection of streptococci isolated from human beings, and then cured these spasms by a serum made from horses, was revealed here by Dr. F. C. Rosenow in a lecture on the value of hiccough epidemics. Dr. Rosenow is connected with the Mayo clinic.

"In two previous epidemics of hiccough," Dr. Rosenow declared, "I isolated a streptococcus from an infection area, such as infected teeth or tonsils in case of epidemic hiccough. These produced spasms of the diaphragm and other muscles when injected into animals.

"The duration of hiccough in the ten cases studied ranged from two to eight days.

"In seven of the ten cases there were symptoms of an associated infection of the throat of varying severity. Moderate tonsilities was found in all.

"The serum from horses immunized with streptococci from encephalitis caused disappearance of spasms of the diaphragm in animals. Several patients having severe, persistent hiccough were afforded prompt relief through administration of the serum."

Smart Set Matrons to Be Hostesses at Senior Supper Dance Tonight

[P. A. A. Photo.]

HELEN AND PRISCILLA RHODES

Boston society girls much admired on the ice at St. Moritz, that playground in Switzerland where the world's fashion and officialdom gather for the Winter sports.

By Betty Alden

MORE than a score of smart matrons of the dancing sets have taken tables for this evening's Senior Supper Dance at the Copley Plaza and will hold forth as hostesses.

MRS. WILLIAM DAVIES SOHIER, JR., the one-time Elaine Denegre, of slender height and Titian coloring, entertains what will perhaps be the largest group, thirty people at two tables.

MR. AND MRS. I. TUCKERBURR'S table for fourteen is near the musicians' stand, and the Leverett Saltonstall table is just opposite. They will have thirty guests.

DR. JOHN BRYANT and his charming wife have their usual table on the left as you enter, and Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames will be at the head of the ballroom, a favorite vantage point of that handsome matron.

MRS. AMES is entertaining more or less, in an informal way, for her sub-debutante daughter, Mary. She is to be presented another season, and no end of pleasant affairs will be on the cards, for Mrs. Ames is herself a brilliant hostess, and kinsfolk on both sides occupy the social summits.

MRS. AMES gave a dance in the ballroom of the Women's Republican Club, one of the first functions to be held at the well-known No. 46 Beacon street, where the club is settling into the spacious and handsomely arranged new quarters.

MRS. THEODORE FROTHINGHAM, JR., Mrs. Dudley Hoss, Mrs. Thomas W. Sturgis, Mrs. Robert Livermore, Mrs. Dunbar Lockwood, Mrs. Richard Humphrey and Mrs. Robert Knowles are to have supper parties.

MRS. HARRISON REYNOLDS has ten guests, Mrs. Ralph Mackprang, Mrs. Ralph Mackprang, Mrs. Ralph Mackprang

EDISON CO. BUYS COAL WITHOUT ASKING BIDS

For the Edison Illuminating Company of Boston buys between 300,000 and 400,000 tons of coal every year without competitive bidding, was told before the Department of Public Utilities at the State House by President Charles L. Edgar.

For a period of thirty years the Edison coal business of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston has been handled almost entirely through C. H. Sprague & Son Company, of 101 Milk street, and Sprague & Son Co. leases the Mystic Wharf and the Atlantic avenue wharves of the Edison Company, as well as other wharves in Providence, Fall River and Salisbury, Mass. The Mystic wharves were leased with no competitive bidding.

QUIZZED ASSAILED.

President Edgar of the Edison company, questioned by Henry F. Hilbert, Jr., attorney for the Boston American in its petition for a reduction of the 8½ cent Boston rate for electricity, expressed the belief that the competitive bid method is not a good one for a public utility corporation.

The Sprague Company has been in business more than fifty years, and Robert Winsor Sprague, a grandson of the founder, is interested in the following companies as trustee or director:

Boston Trust Company.
Charles River Coal & Wharf Company.
Mystic Coal & Wharf Company.
Sprague Coal Corporation.
Boston Rail Transportation Company.

The company does a wholesale coal business at its Boston and South Boston wharves, specializing in "Sprague's New River Coal" and "Egyptian."

BUSINESS FEATURE.

Edgar: In one recent year the Edison Company reduced a coal bill of $1,000,000, the testimony sent the first feature of its coal system will be of interest to every householder who pays what appears to be an exorbitant price for electricity.

Hilbert asked the president of the Edison Company:

Q—From whom does the Edison Company buy its coal? A—It buys it in the open market. It buys through C. H. Sprague & Son Co., but they buy it from various people. Sometimes they do the dickering, and sometimes we do it.

Q—C. H. Sprague & Son Co. are not miners, are they? A.—Not to my knowledge. They are owners in producing mines and they own and operate a company with other mines.

Q—How long has the Edison been buying coal through C. H. Sprague & Son Co.? A—Thirty years, for aught I know.

Q—Ever since the Edison had a coal contract? A.—Ten years for electricity and five years for gas, as I recall it.

Q—Is it that C. H. Sprague & Son Co. not only supplied coal as middlemen but they also supplied transportation? A.—Yes, and that is——

Q—In other words, C. H. Sprague & Co. is owner of their own vessels? A—I don't think they do.

Q—Did they do transport coal to the Edison? A.—Yes.

Q—Has the Edison Company ever made contracts for its coal on a competitive bid basis? A.—No.

Q—Was a statement from Mr. Hilbert counsel for the Edison, in his hands when he was invited in 1914 by Mr. Hurlburt—Do you know of the Edison advertising for bids in the papers? A. (By Mr. Edgar)—No; it was not.

IGNORANT OF BIDS.

Q.—Or do you know of the Edison corporation circularizing coal dealers, asking for competitive bids? A.—No, I know it has not.

Q.—Has anybody ever freighted coal except C. H. Sprague & Son Company? A.—Oh, we have got lots of coal that we have bought in the market, delivered here.

Q.—I am talking about the big mass of coal. A.—The big mass of coal Sprague has delivered, under the contract which run out in 1922.

Q.—The Edison uses about how many tons of coal a year? A.—200,000 or 400,000.

Q.—The Edison Company is a large enough consumer of coal so that it can go and buy direct, isn't it? A.—It does, the great bulk of it.

Q.—Then how does C. H. Sprague & Son enter into it? A.—Because they have always done our transportation, and when we go out and buy coal we turn it over to them and they handle it for us.

Q.—And they take the coal from wherever it is delivered, at the seaboard, and transport it, and you pay them the freight? A.—And we pay them for the coal. We make the trades ourselves, and then turn them over to them to carry out.

Q.—And they carry out the trades—— A.—That is not true of all our coal, but of quite a percentage of it.

Q.—They make the trade, and they freight it, and you pay them the freight? A.—No, we make the trade.

Q.—You make the trade. Then you turn the trade over to them. They carry it out. They freight the coal to Boston. That is all correct, isn't it? A.—Yes.

Q.—You pay them for freighting it? A.—Yes.

Q.—And then you pay them something extra? A.—What do you mean? We pay them for unloading the coal.

Q.—Don't you pay them a commission on it? A.—S-rely.

PAYS COMMISSION.

Q.—You pay them a commission on every ton, don't you? A.—We pay them a commission on the tons of coal they have bought, themselves. If we, ourselves, sometimes we pay it, and sometimes the other fellow pays it.

Q.—Don't you think it is a good thing for a public service corporation, when buying about the biggest raw material in its whole program, to go out and get competitive bids? A.—No.

Q.—You do not? A.—Not necessarily.

Another public hearing on the American's petition for cheaper electricity is set for Monday morning next, at 10:30 o'clock. It will be held in the auditorium room of the Department of Public Utilities, on the ground floor at the State House.

Mr. Hurlburt hopes to conclude the case for the people in one more session, or in two at the most. How much time the Edison Company will require for its answer remains to be determined.

ASKS $17,500 A YEAR FOR CABINET MEMBERS

Washington, January 23.—The annual salary of members of the President's Cabinet would be $17,500, instead of $12,000, under a bill introduced today by Representative Fish, Republican, New York.

In a statement, Mr. Fish said that frequently Cabinet officials, obliged to entertain extensively, have found their salaries inadequate and have been forced to resign, in order to rehabilitate their finances.

Priest Would Set 14 as Legal Age for Marriage

Montpelier, Vt., Jan. 23.—Rev. W. P. Crosby, a Catholic priest of this city, opposed the efforts of the Vermont Social Workers' Conference to urge in its legislative program that the way to prevent child marriage is to educate the children, instead of trying to legislate for their benefit.

Rev. Fr. Crosby stated that sixteen years, as set forth in a bill pending in the Legislature, and which the conference had introduced, is too high; that children of parents who came from Southern Europe mature younger than others, and that fourteen years is the minimum age that children who attend his church can marry.

WOMAN FIGURES IN SHOOTING

DR. AND MRS. WALTER F. PROVAN

Alston man has been indicted at Portland, charged with attempting to kill Mrs. Provan, a Brookline dentist's wife, with a revolver.

CAPTAIN FRANK WRIGHT.

Bay State police officer wounded Morgan. The latter died after shooting Mrs. Provan and the captain at Naples, Me. Above, the house where the triple shooting occurred. Arrow points to window through which shots were fired.

Portland, Me., Jan. 23.—An indictment charging Leroy A. Morgan, Allston automobile salesman, with assault with intent to kill Mrs. Harriet M. Provan, wife of a Brookline dentist, was returned by the grand jury here.

The shooting took place at a Naples cottage where Morgan and Mrs. Provan and Lawrence MacEwan of Gloucester, Mass., marine engine salesman, on the night of October 11. The woman, Morgan claimed, had jilted him after she became infatuated with MacEwan.

In the scuffle following the discovery of the pair Morgan, it was alleged, shot Mrs. Provan in the arm, inflicting a superficial wound.

Morgan has been since held in jail under $10,000 bail, which his devoted wife was unable to secure.

Indictments were also returned in connection with the murder of Alphone Cote, North Gorham farmer, last November. Charles H. Fielding was indicted for the murder, while Mrs. Lottie Freeman Cote, the slain man's wife, and her son, Ralph D. Sanborn, were charged with being accessories to the alleged crime.

THREE SLAYERS DIE IN CHAIR AT SING SING

"I Was Drunk!" Says One, Others Paying Penalty in Silence

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 23 (I.N.S.).—Sing Sing's death chair today had added three convicted murderers to the list of three it has claimed in fulfilment of the law.

They were: John T. Leonard, 22, of New York, slayer of Edward Dolan of Mount Vernon, N. Y.; Florencio Lorma, twenty-five, killer of a Buffalo policeman, and Nicholas Perranti, 45, of Binghamton, N. Y., and who killed his common law wife.

"Anybody here from the Bronx?" he asked, and receiving no reply, answered his own question: "No."

"I was drunk, but I'm willing to pay the price," he declared. "I still hold out that I was drunk. That's all." The switch was thrown at 11:02 p. m. and Leonard was pronounced dead seven minutes later.

Lorma came next. He had nothing to say. He was dead at 11:19 p. m. Perranti, the wife slayer, also had nothing to say.

POLICE WIN IN RACE TO GET 'DEATH BOOK'

Brockton, Jan. 23.—A thrilling race for "murder memo," giving the names and dates concerned in a plot to murder a man who knew too much about the alleged Brockton arson ring, has been won by the law.

The little leather book, alleged to contain the details of an offer of $2,500, made by Samuel Spekin, Brockton shoe manufacturer, for the slaying of John Massey, an alleged firebug who was in Spekin's employ, is today safely in the custody of City Prosecutor Thomas W. Price.

The race from the courthouse, where Spekin is on trial, to the home of Michael Abbatino, principal government witness in the arson ring cases, was dramatic, as it was unusual.

Abbatino, who has turned State's evidence, inadvertently revealed the existence of the "murder memo" while on the witness stand.

He told how he and others, including Massey, were in the office of Israel Solomon of No. 30 Bay street, when Spekin, the leather merchant, offered $2,000 for the firing of his plant.

After the fire, Abbatino testified, Spekin came to his home and offered him $2,000 if he would secure a Boston gunman to murder Massey.

"His wants more money. He keeps calling me at the office and at my home," Abbatino testified the leather merchant said to him.

Abbatino frankly admitted on the stand that he agreed to have Massey murdered for the $2,000.

"I arranged to meet Spekin in the South Station at Boston, the following morning, when he was to give me $2,000 all in $20 bills," Abbatino said.

"Spekin, however, called me late that night and told me the thing was off."

"I have all the records of conversations and dates in a little notebook at home," Abbatino announced in answer to a question on cross examination.

City Prosecutor Thomas W. Price virtually beckoned to City Marshal George W. Chase, who hastened to his side. After a moment's conversation Chase literally ran from the court room.

Attorney Frederick G. Karmazin, counsel for the accused leather merchant, was equally active. He called an emergency and dispatched him forthwith to the Abbatino home.

The thrilling race was on. City Marshal Chase, commandeering a car outside the courthouse, was lucky enough to jump into a high powered machine and a few moments later he burst into the Abbatino home at No. 246 Spring street and when the car bearing the agent of Spekin pulled up in front of the house, the precious "murder memo" reposed safely in the marshal's pocket.

JAZZ GIRL AND JAIL GUARDED FROM BOMBS

Threats Made to Lynch or Blow Up Bobbed-Hair Mother-Slayer

San Francisco, Jan. 23 (I.N.S.).—Feared a foe to dynamite the jail of Justice where Dorothy Gingrass, the jazz baby mother slayer is confined, police today have heavy guards around the jail and the building.

Letters and notes threatening to lynch the sixteen-year-old child bride or blow the bars from the back of her prison home and then run off to get her and drink gin were received by her by both the girl and police. The threats are anonymous, but as was the bomb which recently was set off in the vestibule of the Hall of Justice when scores of officers narrowly escaped death, declared Captain of Detectives Jerry McMahon.

Europe Is Suffering in Mildest Winter in 150 Years

Berlin, Jan. 23 (Universal Wireless)—Europe is actually suffering from the mildest Winter it has experienced in 150 years. Only the mountain tops have seen any snow at all. The peasants are plowing in Sweden and Norway. In the Baltic States the people have even been induced by the shining sun to return to the swamps in Lithuania.

The only snowfall reported thus far is from the Caucasus. An ice drought is beginning to be felt in Central Europe.

Love is Spurned

MISS GRACE DARMOND, Screen star whose engagement to "Lefty" Flynn, ex-Yale grid idol, is denied by latter. "I don't hardly know her," adds Flynn, also a film favorite. Grace is now "done with men."

MISS DARMOND FADES OUT IN FILM ROMANCE

"Lefty" Flynn Denies a Betrothal and Screen Beauties Call Him "Brute"

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 23.—Maurice "Lefty" Flynn, former Yale football star and "tall pine" of the movies, has added another broken heart to his score-card.

The unguilant "Lefty," whose head roars itself in the ratified atmosphere of the upper strata, has spurned the love of Miss Grace Darmond, also of the screen.

In consequence the soul of the gentle, timid, shrinking movie queen has been irreparably damaged, and her women friends are characterizing "Lefty" as a "big brute."

It happened in this way. Two days ago Miss Darmond asked the newspapermen to rally round, and hesitantly, albeit blushingly, announced her engagement to Mr. Flynn.

The reporters gave three more or less routine cheers, and after having made fitting remarks, diametrically the momentous news to a waiting world.

Did Mr. Flynn step to the front of the platform and accept the ovation with a few well chosen words?

He did not. Quite the contrary, in fact. He vigorously and avowedly denied the allegation. The final, crushing slam, though, was delivered when he added he hardly knew Miss Darmond, and "certainly never asked her to marry."

What was a poor lone girl to do? Well, she did it, exiting gracefully with the statement that the affair was "an unfortunate incident which has shaken my faith in men terribly."

'MR. MULLIGAN' BAITS MAYOR ON EXPOSE

Lafayette Mulligan is in again! When Mayor Curley resumed his practice of shaking a gift key of visitors to the city, Lafayette, who gained fame by presenting the Prince of Wales with a key on behalf of Mayor Curley, came from his retirement.

Amid the episode concerning the Prince of Wales, the Mayor temporarily gave up the official key-hobby and for the time being, presented distinguished visitors with neat little booklets telling them all about Boston.

The resumption of key presentations has brought the following letter to the Mayor from Mr. Mulligan:

"My Dear Mr. Mayor—I was pleased to see by today's papers that you have resumed the custom of presenting keys of the city to distinguished visitors. That, of course, is in accordance with our understanding of several weeks ago when we last discussed the matter.

"It seemed to me extremely ill-considered and disingenuous, however, for you to foist my identity on an individual with whom I am not even acquainted. Furthermore, it smacks of cowardice for you to shelter yourself behind a statement by one of your hired sleuths. To make a charge on facts in your own possession is one thing; to accept the theory of a professional guesser is another.

"Naturally, I can appreciate the awkward position in which you found yourself following your first courteous impulse towards His Highness. That nevertheless cannot lastly your statement about a man whom we both know had developed nothing to do with the matter. As for your detectives, I can only condole with them at having parted in heaven on my identity at the end of several weeks of shoplifting loan at the end of the first day. But I sincerely concentrate them on prolonging the investigation so long for their pocketbooks' sake."

TELL POLICE EMPLOYE AND $516 ARE GONE

Jack Cowan, twenty-five-year-old employe of the Waters Amusement Agency, No. 234 Tremont street, has vanished simultaneously with $516 of the police were notified today. Young Cowan, who lives in Shelley street, Allston, went to the bank with the $516 and a number of checks. He deposited the checks then dropped out of sight, according to his employer.

HUSBAND AND WIFE KILL EACH OTHER

San Francisco, Jan. 23. (I.N.S.)—Following a fatal battle in the wee of their divorce trial, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Parsons were dead here today.

According to police, the woman fired seven shots into the head of her husband, a druggist, before he returned the death blast, killing his wife with a single shot.

SAY BOSTON COURTS TRY MANY "OUTSIDE" CASES

The Boston municipal courts are used each year for vast numbers of cases which should properly be tried in other jurisdictions, a practice which costs the city of Boston many thousands of dollars annually, according to statements made before the Legislative Committee on Joint Judiciary by Assistant Corporation Counsel H. Murray Packhard, representing Mayor Curley.

ACTRESS DENIES SHE IS TO MARRY 'MR. ZERO'

New York, Jan. 23.—Urbain J. Ledoux, "Mr. Zero," has his wedding arrangements all on ice, according to his statement made at a luncheon in the Chinese Club, held at the Taizo. The protector of the poor and down-trodden, who has given over his day eating place the Tub, to the jobless, said he would marry Mary Hall, actress appearing at the Shubert Theatre. Miss Hall, through Courtenay Savage, playwright, denied it.

Jack Dempsey's Life Story

How Champion Fought His Way to Fame, Through 51 Romances in Bohemia and "The Four Hundred"

After that, an array of toilet accessories, atomizers, manicure implements, cold cream—yes, even eyebrow pencils and a big box of rouge.

Please don't get that part wrong. Dempsey hasn't turned into a fop. He's about as "soft" as a piece of case-hardened steel. The presence of pencils and rouge are purely stage stuff. He and Jack Kearns are doing a turn in big-time vaudeville for the trifling sum of $10,000 a week, and make-up is a forced requirement behind the footlights.

Real Revelations

Nevertheless, it's a startling and amusing layout. I grin, and he grins back, and the "champ" begins to talk.

But here, at the very beginning, before entering upon the series of conversations, in Jack Dempsey's own words, that will make up the chief part of these articles, I want to set down briefly just a few of the astonishing things I have learned about him in the course of a hundred such talks.

Some of the revelations will astonish his most intimate friends.

Jack Dempsey, the former "hobo," who came up from the begrimed mining camps with his fists, gets more "mash notes," "love letters," and proposals of marriage than Rudolph Valentino. They come from every avenue, from Park avenue, from girls whose names are in the social register, and girls who wait on tables in cheap restaurants.

Against his wishes and despite his modesty, he has become, in the eyes of a million girls, if not in fact, the world's foremost "wheel."

In less than five years, he has been reported engaged to exactly fifty-one girls, nearly all of them beautiful, and many of them famous.

Jack Dempsey, who was so broke a few years ago that he had to ride the rods on freight trains, is today a business man, hotel owner, president of a coal mine and a millionaire.

Jack Dempsey, supposed son of obscure Irish-American parentage in the West, and who has never disclosed the real truth of his origin, is a nephew of the late famous Ann Hatfield, great West Virginia feudist and head of a fighting Hatfield clan. Dempsey's grandfather, Anderson Dempsey, instead of being illiterate, was a prosperous county surveyor, and Dempsey's own father was a school teacher in West Virginia, before he trekked west to become a pioneer and farmer. Little Jack, at the age of ten, instead of running wild in back alleys, was going to school and reciting poetry on "Literary night," decked out in a little sash and windsor tie. A lot of the "hobo" stuff is true, but it came long afterward.

Four Don'ts

Jack Dempsey, who has come to be a King in what is perhaps still think is the toughest game in the world is a man who—

Doesn't smoke—
Doesn't drink—
Doesn't swear—
Doesn't gamble—

This is not "made-up" stuff. It is absolutely true. And there's more of it, even more surprising.

Jack Dempsey, the "tiger," the killer, the born fighter, the hard-hitting heavyweight champion pugilist, the "tough guy," who can "lick the world with his fists," has never hit a man outside the prize-ring since he became champion.

He has never been in a bar-room fight, he has never been in a brawl —and he's had some almost inhuman provocations. There was a night at the "Bar Americain," in Paris, that took the most tremendous self-control—and one man, at least, had slapped, or tried to slap Jack Dempsey's face—and the champion didn't smash him because he thought it wouldn't be fair. He will tell all about it in his own words, later.

How Jack Dempsey has escaped the "swelled head"—and he has is a greater miracle than that he has escaped cauliflower ears.

He has had "social attention"—and not merely from the fair sex, but from men who would turn the head of any man, much less a fellow who was a day laborer less than ten years ago.

He has lunched, sat once, but several times, with Sir Thomas Lipton in his exclusive club in Montreal.

He has week-ended on the magnificent country estates of the Vanderbilts, the multi-millionaire president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, outside Philadelphia, where he has met and talked with and played golf with Judge Gary, Schwab and other famous captains of finance.

True Cosmopolitan

His friends and acquaintances—and some of them are intimate friendships—include hundreds of the world's most famous men and women—not only followers of sport and Broadway celebrities, but the great and near-great in every walk of life.

He has golfed, lunched, talked and week-ended with captains of finance, Presidents of the United States, lords, earls, geniuses and generals, diplomats, dukes and princes-royal.

His has dined, danced, played with the world's most famous and beautiful women.

In London he was entertained by Lord Northcliffe elbow-to-elbow with titles and celebrities. He will tell of it all, in detail, in his own words.

In Paris the famous Letellier invited to his house to meet Dempsey some of the most noted and beautiful women of society and the stage in the French capital.

In Berlin the mayor presented him with the third finest police dog in the world—a magnificent black Dobermann Pincher.

A few weeks ago, when he called by invitation at the White offices for a chat with the President of the United States, Mr. Coolidge said to him:

"Well, Mr. Dempsey, you're a more famous man than I am"—and President Coolidge probably spoke the truth.

In subsequent chapters, I am going to let Jack Dempsey himself do most of the talking. It may be well to let him begin now, in his luxurious bedroom, surrounded by the gorgeous raiment and gold-backed toilet articles that Jerry continues to unpack:

"I guess it is kind of funny all right. I often get a big laugh out of it myself. You know, a few years back all they wanted of a heavyweight was that he could sling and take it. All they wanted him to do was to fight. Outside the ring, he wasn't respectable. And a lot of decent people wouldn't go to see him fight because it was brutal and he was a bruis.

"If he was a gorilla in the ring, and didn't go round afterward getting drunk and fighting cops and running over people after automobiles were invented and making scandals with tough women, that was all they hoped for.

"I don't mean that all oldtimers were like that—and it's a sure thing most of the champs weren't. But it was the idea people had, and when a square guy came along like Fitzsimmons or Corbett, they sort of thought it was unnatural.

"And just look at it now, how it's changed. Now they want a champion to be a gentleman, and no kidding about it either. The ladies come to see him fight. Imagine that ten years ago! If a lady went to a prize fight, she was no lady. Now it's a society event, and they print lists of society swells, and what sort of dresses and hats and flowers they wear, the same as at grand opera. Even preachers and professors come to big fights these days. Believe me, it's some change.

"Yes, sir, they expect you to be a gentleman now, and on top of that they take you to art studios and make classical photographs to publish in fashion magazines, and compare you in Greek statues instead of gorillas. Well, that ought to please Jerry here—he's a Greek.

"What It's Done"

"I ask you, to take a look at what it's done to me, fellows. When I'm not swinging Indian clubs and punching the bag, they've got me picking up eyeglasses on with little tweezers. They'll be trying to make me carry my handkerchief in my cuff next, but that's where I stop. I leave that to the Prince of Wales—"

I interrupted him to say: "Yes, but you like it, Jack."

He replied:

"Sure, I like it. It's fine, and it gives a fellow a real chance to be astonishing—but just the same, sometimes I wonder how it's all happened to me—I don't mean the championship and the money we've made—but the friends I've got—the swell way I'm treated everywhere by all sorts of people. Now just take a look at these letters."

He stopped to pick up a handful of mail that he had already opened. I could have answered the question he was wondering about, but I didn't want to interrupt him. Jack Dempsey, aside from being a great fighter, has one of the rarest gifts that fate can bestow on any man or woman. He has natural charm—the unconscious kind that can't be faked or imitated. He has the instinctive power of making men and women and children and dogs like him. It can be safely said that the only people who do not like Jack Dempsey are the people who have never met him personally. While these words are going through my mind, he began running over his mail and telling me about it:

"Here's a letter from a lady who is a society swell, Mrs. Nelson Taylor. Junior League, society circus and dance, or something, and she says that they'll be honored and delighted if I can find the time to come. What's wrong with this picture, kid?

"Here's a note from Mr. Charlie Ramsdell, big league banker. Says, if I want to play golf, come to his club; drop into his office for a chat; maybe have lunch with him before. I was sore. Some people think it's the think, and I once did, too, but I was wrong.

"Here's one from Bishop Turner—no, it's from a secretary. Some of the best friends I've got in the world are private, though I don't think I've ever met the bishop. You know, most of the schooling I had was from them, in a little parochial school out in Colorado. The Catholic Daughters of America are going to have a supper, this letter says, and they want me to come to it, and sit beside the bishop. Imagine that. I guess I'll go, too.

"Here's one from a police captain I used to know. Haven't seen him for ten years. Wants me to go out with him to a hospital for crippled children and do stage stuff, or make 'em a little talk.

A Girl's Letter

"And here's one you can't beat. Here's a girl who wants me to give her a job—or get her a job—as a social secretary! Think of me with a social secretary, and laugh. I guess she's a nice girl, just the same, and don't know any better. Look at this monogram and this paper, and the way she writes. And just listen what she says:

"My Dear Mr. Dempsey:

"Possibly you will be as surprised to receive this letter as I am to find myself writing it—but after I explain I hope you will pardon my taking the liberty.

"It was my privilege to be presented to you one evening while dining in the Cocoanut Grove in the Ambassador at Los Angeles. You were with Clara Bow.

"At that time—about six months ago—I was visiting in Hollywood, studying music and dramatic art. Quite suddenly I was compelled to return to my home here because of business reverses suffered by my father.

"I miss tremendously my association with the professional folks. I like the inspiration of their companionship, and I miss California's glories.

"I am wondering, Mr. Dempsey, if when you return west you might be interested to secure, or might know of some friend who would care to secure as a social secretary the services of a cultured young lady. I would be very happy to call, with my mother, for a short interview and to present credentials."

What People Think

"What say? Sure, I guess you can write a paragraph about it, if you want to, but don't use her name, for she must be a nice girl all right, and it wouldn't be right to have her friends kidding her. But I guess I don't need a social secretary—that goes with the handkerchief in the Prince of Wales' sleeve. Oh Doc Kearns is the only social secretary I need.

"But say, I want to tell you something. It's great when people expect you to be right, and treat you that way. Many a man's been made a bum by a lot of people thinking he's a bum. But when the people you care about, and the people who amount to something, say, 'Sure, Jack Dempsey's a gentleman, Jack Dempsey's a square guy, it kinda smooths the road for you.

"And then when some bird comes along who's got the wrong angle, it makes it easier for you to hold yourself in. A long time ago I made up my mind that unless it was forced on me I'd never hit a guy with my fist outside the ring. I won't say I never will, for some things call for it so loud you've got to answer, but I'm funny how far you can go and hold yourself in and keep your self-respect, once you've made up your mind. I've got my own ideas about that, and, believe me, they've had the acid test.

"It's a fact that I've never hit a man outside the ring since I became champion, and I hope I never will. But it hasn't always been so easy.

"When old Doc Kearns and I first began to be invited around to swell people's houses, all doled up in the soup-and-fish, 'we went out and bought the Book of Etiquette—what's wrong with the plural stuff?—and added it to our library, which was the Marquis of Queensberry Rules, and a railroad guide and the World Almanac. We studied it, too. And some of the things that happened afterward were a scream for fair. One of these days I'll have to tell you all about it.

Outside Information

"But there was nothing in that book about what should a champion heavyweight do when some shrimp or some bum he could smash with one jab tries to pick a fight with him outside the ring.

"That's where you have to let your conscience be your guide, as the old song says. Would you believe it, that one man—on Broadway, too, and not so very long ago—tried to slap my face? It would be almost the truth to say he did slap it. It's too long a story to tell you now, but I'll give you the whole inside dope on it later, if you want it. Anyway, I had my flat doubled and pulled back to smash him, and he was smaller than I was—and I just couldn't do it. I handled it another way.

"And then there was one night in Paris, in what they called an American bar. A rich guy from the Argentine had it in for me because of a girl—a cloak model—that I'd never spoken to or seen alone in my life. But she had been sending me notes to the Claridge. I hadn't answered them, but he had caught on with her, and he was crazy. That's another story. He wanted a fight and a duel afterward. He was a big guy, not too little for anybody to hit. But what was the use? I got him into a clinch, without hurting him at all—without rapping him once—and the waiters took him out. I won't say I'll never do it, but up to now I've never hit a man outside the ring since I became champion. I figure that it wouldn't be fair."

In the next chapter Jack Dempsey will tell how it feels for a man who was once a hobo to become a millionaire—how he has made his money—how he spends it—how much he gives away—millions, it is said, have never been told before. Copyright, 1925, by Hearst's International Cosmopolitan.

CHANCE TO GET $1,000,000 FOR $200

New Yorker Ready to Waive Rights to Legacy From Aged Mother

New York, Jan. 23.—Here is a $1,000 to 1 shot for anyone who loves to take a chance.

Edwin K. Norton, aged forty, will receive a legacy of $1,000,000 if he survives his mother by twenty-one years. His mother is now eighty-one years of age.

Norton, broken in health and a bankrupt, is willing to sell his chances at that million dollars for the paltry sum of $200. A 5,000 to 1 shot.

Norton is one of the partners in the bankrupt American Oil-Burner Sales Company of Brooklyn and the million-dollar legacy is provided in his father's will.

Through a Federal court order, however, the inheritance will shortly be put up at auction and sold to the highest bidder and the proceeds used to help satisfy the creditors of the bankrupt company. Mrs. Norton, despite her age, is strong and well. Her son is broken in health and during the past year has been in various sanitariums and resorts. His attorney, Ernest M. Morrison, said that Norton's chances of inheriting the legacy is not worth $50. The public will receive an opportunity to bid the amount they think the chance is worth.

The attempt to raise ready cash for the bankrupt legacy is being made on the claims of creditors of the company may be partly satisfied. The company went into bankruptcy in November, 1923. Norton and J. Dale Dewes were partners and as the bankruptcy laws provide that both members are individually responsible for the total debts. Norton surrendered all of his personal property, including the contingent legacy. Dewes had no assets.

Norton satisfied the claims of several secured creditors amounting to $15,000 and then turned over about $7,000 to help pay off the rest of the claims against the company. He lost all he had in the venture.

The offer to purchase the contingent legacy was made by Mrs. Lucy Norton through her attorney, Lawson Riggs, Jr., and has been filed with Referee Edward E. Millspaugh.

Both Catholics and Protestants Use Same Church

Keystone, Neb., Jan. 23.—Co-operation and religious toleration are receiving a thorough test in a little church here where both Catholics and Protestants worship.

In one end of the edifice is the Catholic altar. Opposite is the pulpit for Protestant services. Seats are arranged like those of a railroad coach, so that the backs face either end of the building.

Reversal of the benches thus changes the church from one denomination to the other as desired. The church seats about seventy-five persons.

Georgette's Husband Killed, Brother-in-Law and His Wife Now Very Ill

New York, Jan. 23 (Universal).—The tragic death of handsome "Billy" Souther, husband of Georgette Cohan, was only the first of a series of troubles besetting those closest to him by ties of blood and marriage.

She came home without the decree, however, and when he was killed in a fall from a horse miles away from doctors or nurses in the wilds of Wyoming, she forgot all other feelings in her love for him and insisted that her heart was broken.

At the time of Souther's death in Wyoming, Georgette was ill in a New York hospital where she still remains, fighting death.

Billy's twin brother, George W. Souther, divorcing his first wife, married Alice Harrington, a daughter of great wealth. With his new bride, George went to Aiken, S. C., where they have been visiting his parental home. His father made a fortune as the head of a big Albany paper mill.

Al Aiken, is now learned, Mrs. George Souther has had to undergo [illegible] an operation made necessary by stomach hemorrhages. Facing death after a partially successful operation, her life was only saved by the transfusion of blood from the arteries of her husband, and she is still serious ly ill.

In his weakened condition after giving up a large quantity of blood, George Souther contracted pneumonia, and still has the crisis to pass.

Malden police had to roll snowballs when a group of youngsters barricaded Tremont street with a number of huge snowballs. The wall of snow was built across the street near Mountain avenue.

A dozen huge snowballs were rolled and then pushed into the street and lined up one against the other. The largest was nearly six feet in height, and the others not much smaller.

Campbell and a force of assistants succeeded in getting the balls out of the street and into the gutter.

Paris, Jan. 23.—The effect the disenfranchisement of the French Embassy at the Vatican in Rome would have on the 20,000,000 Catholics in America was emphasized by ex-Premier Briand in an address before the Chamber of Deputies in an effort to save the embassy.

"When you hand the papal nuncio his passport," M. Briand declared, "you will bring upon yourselves the protest of every chancellery. What will the 20,000,000 Catholics in the United States say? What reaction will your action have on their consciences as Catholics?"

The ex-Premier declared France would find it dangerous to neglect the Vatican, which he said was the centre of international activities.

"SEMI-OFFICIAL" STORY SAYS FISHER TO BE COACH AGAIN

SELECTION ALREADY MADE

According to unofficial statements from sources close to the Harvard football committee situation, Bob Fisher, present mentor, will be coached again next fall.

The informal announcement is nothing but verbal as there is no official statement apparent at the Cambridge institution. The Harvard Athletic Council and Secretary Dudley Sharp are believed to be no other than Dean D. Merrick, director of athletics, and always [illegible] with the workings of Harvard athletic teams.

Two major facts may be taken for granted as the Harvard grid committee set to work. The first, of course, was the desire to keep Fisher, a graduate of the university and a star player while there.

BOUGHT DATA BEFORE.

The second was the search of most Harvard men. Anything which could be included here was to be responded to.

As regards Major Wallace Daly, the veteran coach was [illegible] that he was [illegible] the coaching of the [illegible] years, perhaps [illegible] the [illegible] the Crimson gridiron [illegible] there was any discussion over the hiring of a new coach.

According to reports [illegible] the writer could be obtained from [illegible] to know. Fisher's decision has been [illegible] a period of exceeding five [illegible] he is reappointed.

TWENTY CONSIDERED.

The editor further points out that [illegible] a number of coaches [illegible] the new coach for the [illegible] election has been based upon the formula [illegible] During the past two seasons, [illegible] to have [illegible] effect [illegible] performances [illegible] Dr. Owen.

At least 20 men have been considered in the committee's [illegible] sections, but none of them have been named according to the writer. This does not mean however, that if Fisher is appointed it will be because there was nobody else available to name he said.

On the contrary, says the writer the majority of Harvard men [illegible] that Fisher has done a pretty good job since he took over the coaching position and should be reappointed.

MUST EXPECT DEFEAT

The writer concluded his article by saying that Harvard men must expect [illegible] in the future. There was a time [illegible] when Harvard was [illegible] every game [illegible] with most of their opponents [illegible] but those days have gone forever.

No longer [illegible] Harvard men be expected to continue [illegible] a decisive superior to a majority of them [illegible] colege and [illegible] Harvard men not to expect the impossible but to [illegible] forward to Harvard teams suffering these share of defeats in the future regardless of who is doing the coaching.

FLOWERS IS TO FIGHT HIS WAY BACK TO TOP

Tiger Flowers, Georgia Tornado, who comes here next [illegible] to battle the hard-hitting Tommy Robson of Malden [illegible] to attempt [illegible] years' [illegible] which [illegible] something from the pile of [illegible] to the pinnacle of the middleweight class [illegible] to be discounted by a turn of fate, [illegible] had [illegible] victory was stopped by a one defeat at the hands of Jack Dempsey.

For this reason Holy fans are expected to see a tornado of far deeper determination and more dangerous when Flowers steps into the ring for his second fight before local fans. He is out to fight his way back to a return match with Dempsey at the earliest opportunity and he opens the campaign [illegible] when he meets Robson here.

Meanwhile Tommy Robson is preparing [illegible] eagerly looking forward to [illegible] a K. O. punch against Mr. Flowers' anatomy. If there is anything in confidence, Robson might as well be counted the victor right now. Never in his career has he been in such fine shape.

A crowd of fans will accompany Tony Carney to this city from New Bedford. The youngster recently arrived at the top meets Jimmy Harko of Manchester, N. H. in the semi-final.

What hockey needs is a Billy Evans or a Frank Walker Evans, an umpire in the American League, commands the respect of every player in the Johnson or cult. His word is final. Nine-tyn-ne times out of a 100 he is obeyed without further argument. He will take no foo-ing. When he wieves a man off the field he generally goes.

The same with Walker on the Grand Circuit. He is rated as one of the best trotting officials there is. And why? Because he makes those under his jurisdiction obey him. No back talk, no argument, no funny stuff with Walker. He will not to erate it. His word is law.

Brooklyn officials denied a story coming from the Coast that the Dodgers had offered Wade Killefer, Seattle manager, $15,000 a year to take over the reins. If such an offer was made and Killefer did agree to come it is hardly likely that he would stand for any quotation. He would want a free hand, and while Robbie is in Brooklyn that seems impossible.

Larry remained with the Nationals until the formation of the American League when Charley Sommers signed him for his Cleveland club. Larry received as the time a contract for four years at the unheard of salary of $6,000 a year and a bonus of $2,000 for reporting immediately to the Indians.

That salary was later raised until Lajoie became one of the really high priced stars of the game, and he remained with Cleveland during the rest of his playing career.

Larry is now in business in the Forest City, the same old easy going fellow he was when he yelled "Keb, Keb, Keb" to prospective patrons at the old Woonsocket depot.

There's Quality in everything

IN everything from a binding post to a vacuum tube, there is quality. But quality counts most in the vacuum tube. A radio set can be built for distance, for clear tone, for volume. But to get the best out of any hookup—you want to fit it with genuine Radiotrons.

No matter what type of set you have—or what type of circuit you are buying tubes for—ask for Radiotrons by name—and make sure you get the genuine by looking on the tube for the word Radiotron and the RCA mark. Quality counts!

Book Agent Kisses Woman as Ideal; Lands in Jail

New York, Jan. 22. When Agnes Cerniglia answered the doorbell at her 11th street home one week ago this morning she found a salesman there who wanted to interest her in buying a picture from his portfolio. She invited him in. Mrs. Cerniglia was looking for art at any price and listened to his proposal.

Agnes Simone, a book agent, told Magistrate McQuade that he had become a book agent because it offered him the best opportunity to seek his prey, upon whose picture, cropped from a magazine, he had carried with him for six years.

Agnes is said to resemble a dress model and he would rest the "long-sought copy" upon her.

Agnes said that a comparison of her to the picture of a fine was startling in that of a prisoner.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

GENIUS of apartment dwellers has brought these new davenports which are useless by day or ede by night.

Just who have automatic rings which throw your company on the floor in case you want them to.

Do you have to do is push a button and the bed jumps out and hits you in the nose.

Of course they also have beds which will hit you on the ear when your nose is tender.

We walk into somebody's parlor and see one of these magic davenports and you'd have to idea it was a bed. You didn't see three or four children sleeping in it.

I notice like this gives you an idea that your company is not over night without having clean on a rug.

Rub Away Baby's Colds

A Boon to Mothers

Mother, everywhere who realize the danger to delicate little stomachs of too much dosing appreciate the value of Vicks in treating croup and children's colds.

For Vicks there is nothing to take—you just rub it on. The vapors from the ingredients—Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thymol, Turpentine—in the form of vapor which carry the medicinal values into the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster. You go overnight. Croup is usually relieved within 15 minutes.

VICKS VAPORUB
OVER 17 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

Of course you don't mind them sleeping on a rug, but they usually roll off during the night and scratch your hardwood floors with their suspenders.

THESE davenports are very easy to move around and in two minutes you can change the library or butler's pantry into a bedroom.

THEY also come in smaller sizes in case you wanted to make a spare room out of the dumb-waiter.

THE only bad thing about sleeping on the dumb-waiter is that you wouldn't know who's apartment you'd be liable to wake up in the next morning.

AND besides, when you opened your eyes you'd find your chest covered with milk bottles, newspaper baskets, fish and groceries.

STILL, one advantage would be that you wouldn't have to get up to eat your breakfast.

SOME of these convertible davenports have such easy rolling casters that the slightest draft will blow them out of the parlor and into the hall.

THIS is a wonderful thing for a man who walks in his sleep.

HE can do all the traveling he wants at night without having to leave his bed.

HE can retire in the evening and not have to worry about having rome by the morning.

THE ney couch will pay for its self with the money it saves on rubber overshoe bills.

THESE latest davenports are the lightest things in the world to lift. If you don't believe it just miss one of the pavements and see how quick the furniture company moves it out of your parlor.

Paul Revere

"THE Red Coats are coming, Paul Revere," cried a excitant excitedly. "You'd better warn the folks at Lexington and Concord."

"Gosh," moaned Paul. "Just my luck to have one of my tires on the fritz right now and I haven't a spare around the place. Besides, where to look am I going get gas at this hour of the night?"

Paul Revere never did get started on his midnight ride to time, and what with three blowouts, running into four detours and getting two offers for speeding, was lucky to escape capture himself.

Sir Walter Raleigh

"Oh, Walter, look, there's a puddle of water," cried Queen Elizabeth to sail alarm.

"Well, what about it, Lizzie?" asked Sir Walter. "Never see a puddle of water before?"

"Sure, but I never had to cross one before. You don't expect me to get my tootsies wet, do you? Spread your cloak out so I can pass."

"Nix, what do you think I am, a weather? With present prices of clothing I ain't fool enough to go around using my cloak for a door mat."

"But what'll I do?" moaned the Queen.

"I have it," said Walter, brightening up. "I'll call a taxi."

George Washington and the Cherry Tree.

"Young man," stormed the senior Washington, "did you chop down the cherry tree?"

"Yes, father," proudly admitted George Washington. "It's my press agent's idea to build up a legend about me that I never told a lie. He said it's going to help elect me President some day."

"Good. I hope you had the nerve to tell the photographers there."

"You bet. My press agent never misses a bet. You didn't care for that old cherry tree anyway, did you, dad?"

"No, son. I purposely planted it so you would be able to chop it down some day, but for this reason!"

Bobby Finds a New Kind of Battery

By Foxy Grandpa

IT was down on a river in South America that this strange occurrence about which I'm going to tell you took place.

To get up to the camp where we were going to make our headquarters on an exploration which we were planning we had to go up a long, winding river.

It was beautiful. Great tropical trees hung over the sides of the river, protecting us kindly from the scorching sun. And in those trees lived and quarreled many gorgeous birds—parrots and all kinds of beautiful creatures. And how those birds can chatter and give the most remarkable acrobatic performances.

But even these rare entertainments did not keep Bobby from his one great sport—fishing. For over the stern of the boat hung Bobby, fishing line in hand, trailing away for dear life, hoping for a bite.

But he got the kind of a bite as he thought, that he wasn't looking for and certainly did not expect.

I will tell you about it.

First he started pulling, for the line ran through his fingers until I was afraid it would cut them. But Bobby didn't want to give up. He held firm. But at last I said:

"Let me give you a hand, Bobby, Bobby."

And I took the line from him. But I didn't have an easy time, I assure you. How that line did jerk and pull.

"Must be a shark," shouted Bobby, as he watched my struggles to pull in the catch.

"Feels like a whale," I chuckled breathlessly.

I tugged and tugged and finally up to the surface came the biggest eel I've ever seen in all my life.

"An eel," shouted Bobby. "We can cook him for lunch."

But the boy said that before he knew just what kind of an eel it was.

Into the boat I jerked the squirmer—you know there is nothing on earth that can wriggle like an eel. Just try to catch one in your hand some day—but not this kind though.

Finally we had him safely in the bottom of the boat. How he did whip himself around. In one of his manoeuvres he switched around his tail and it struck Bobby's leg.

"Ouch," shouted Bobby in pain. "He bit me."

"An eel can't bite with his tail," said Bunny.

"Well, it hurt, anyway," said Bobby, rubbing his leg, "and it still tingles just like electricity."

"It is electricity," said the pilot of our boat. "Bobby, you've had a shock."

"What do you mean?" I asked in amazement.

"That's one of those electric eels it's grow down here," replied our pilot. "They've been known to kill horses. No one knows what generates their power, but they have it, all right, in two long organs in their bodies."

"Better not cook that eel for lunch," said Bobby. "We might all be electrocuted. But I wonder if I could use him instead of a battery to run my electric train."

WE WISH

That our pay envelope was as thick as a Sunday newspaper.

That chickens didn't have any bones in it so folks couldn't tell how much we ate.

That we could marry the daughter of a jeweler. She would probably already have more diamond rings than she wanted.

That we had the concession for all the souvenir postcards sold of Niagara Falls.

FAMOUS FIRSTS

By Mark Stuyvesant

DID you ever stop to think that the skyscraper, the towering pile of stone and steel which is the pride and ornament of the American landscape and the object of wonderment to the foreigner on our soil, would be a practical impossibility if it were not for the invention of the elevator?

We have only to consider the prospect of mounting on foot some twenty flights of steps to realize the importance and significance of this invention in connection with that beautiful and useful creation of American architecture, the skyscraper.

The first elevator was the invention of E. G. Otis. It was patented in the United States in the year 1861. It was the first of a series of inventions and improvements which have made the elevator, or lift, a necessity of our civilization.

The elevator, in order to be of practical use, must be safe, comfortable, speedy. It must be equipped with devices which will make it possible to stop in emergency, as well as when it is working regularly. The speeding up and slowing down gently as one nears must be effected with sufficient smoothness to prevent, as far as possible, that terrible, shocking sensation in the region of the solar plexus.

Needless to say, Mr. Otis' invention was not the elegantly appointed little room, fitted out in shiny mirrors, soft-cushioned seats and delicate iron work, moving up and down with noiseless rapidity, as if by magic, with no visible mechanism, other than an inconspicuous little handle or wheel. Yet it did fulfill the necessary requirements of producing motion and a fair degree of safety.

The first elevator was operated by means of vertical screw, the nut of which carried the cage. The screwing and unscrewing motion of this device secured the desired up and down motion.

This form was in general use for some twenty years, until, as it always was the case with mechanical inventions, it was supplanted by an improved mechanism.

The second type of elevator to be used was the hydraulic or plunger-lift. It consists of a long pipe sunk deeply in the ground in which a correspondingly long plunger is inserted, which rises and falls, carrying the elevator cage on its upper end.

ECLIPSE NEWS

Professor Dumm and his colleague, Professor Dippy, announce that the eclipse has arrived. Parked in their private observatory they have just seen their garden wall in ruins. After several hours, they declare, clouds cut off the view. They were sorry, more kind of trouble, but they hope to have better luck in science. These notes are pleading of the astronomers in an effort to keep the planet from falling. After viewing the planet through a telescope they said the eclipse lasted for a number of hours and declared it was definitely over. NOTHING'S ON THE LEVEL IN THIS WORLD

Dear Nick—Having the knack and the heart, will you kindly tell readers who contribute what sort of rule those weather guys use when they say "Six inches of snow fell on the level"? Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

"I've come to see you because I think many others should. You're the only man I've summoned up enough courage to talk with since——"

The young caller fidgeted nervously, turned his eyes away from mine and began to sob.

"What's on your mind?" I asked.

"An awful lot, something terrible, so terrible that, now that I've had courage enough to come here, I can hardly speak of it."

I expressed sympathy, and waited.

"I am only twenty-three now. I married very young—too young, my people said the girl people both said. But I worked very hard—at one time I kept two jobs going, working at street cars every day. I got along quite well. By and by I was given a responsible job in a bank and was earning more than $3,000 a year. But I started living up to every penny. I had a fine home, bought an automobile, got in with rich fellows.

"We had one child. When I knew there would be another, I figured that I simply must get hold of more money than I was earning. It simply wasn't possible for me to meet all the expenses that would come along.

"I knew a bookmaker, and he told me of a horse that was absolutely sure to win the next Saturday. It had won six races and had never been beaten. He told me that it was an easy as picking money off the street to put a hundred on it.

"I hadn't any money to bet with, but it was easy enough, because of my position in the bank, to help myself to $500, which I could put back at the beginning of the week, after cleaning up.

"Again he began to twitch.

"I have read a lot of your writings, and I thought you might know some rich man who would be willing to get me out of my terrible trouble.

"How much have you stolen altogether?" I asked.

"I——took more than thirty thousand dollars."

"So you are now a fugitive from justice! That is very serious, you know."

Instantly his hand went to his hip pocket.

"You've got a gun there!"

"Yes, and nobody is ever going to get me alive."

His act put his hand on his gun. He watched me intently, to see what what move I would make. Had I pressed a button or made any other ominous gesture, he was ready to shoot—himself, I assumed, not me.

I had a long talk. I found his ideas were all wrong. He reasoned that if he could get someone to make good what he had stolen, everything would be all right and he would be under no disgrace. He thought disgrace would consist of having to go to jail. The disgrace did not consist of having stolen any money. I indicated that if he ever should go to jail, he would feel mortified if he had to do menial work.

* * *

He had the notion that it should be easy to find some rich man willing to "give me a chance," to find him that most rich men would prefer to help an honest young man rather than a thief. He indicated that he resented being regarded as a thief.

* * *

To make a long story short, I tried to convince him that he was little likely to find any stranger willing to restore the money he had stolen. But at that, I gave him a few names so that he could convince himself of what he was up against. I urged him, if he failed to raise the money, to go back and face the music.

Why this recital here?

Because I believe far too many men, especially young men, are today giving way to temptation to impress people that they are more important and prosperous than they actually are; that too many fellows are spending their money with dangerous foolishness, that too many are seeking to cut a wider swath than their means justify; that too many have adopted a scale of living which is very liable to drive them ultimately to desperation.

Is it not true that every man who spends more than he earns is a thief? If he spends money not belonging to him, clearly he must take it from somebody else.

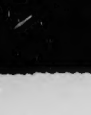
RUSSELL TELLS OF NEW HAVEN PROGRESS

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

Vice-President Arthur F. Russell of the New Haven Railroad, speaking at Providence



Arthur F. Russell

before the Rhode Island Textile Association, called attention to the strong security behind the new 6 per cent. gold bonds issued to refund the European loan maturing April 1 next.

He stated operation of the 2 per cent. sinking fund would retire more than half the bonds before maturity in 1940. The collateral security, which comprises first and refunding mortgage 6 per cent. bonds, will remain outstanding, so that the entire bonds become better and better secured as years go on.

"I am proud of the company," he said, "manifested their faith in the proposition by personally subscribing to more than $1,000,000 of the secured bonds. Banks and bankers at New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts have already stamped their approval upon the soundness of the security by subscribing to nearly $9,000,000.

"It is hoped that industrial concerns in Rhode Island will show similar confidence by subscribing to a security which will be paid at maturity or before, and thus enable the company to continue to provide necessary improvements which assure a continuance of satisfactory transportation service.

"Each month the company has continued to earn surpluses and closed the year with a surplus after all charges of $3,006,000—the first surplus since the company was taken under Federal control in 1918.

"The results from the materials and supply economies, stockholders and employes has been surprisingly favorable. Enough has already been subscribed to that with what may be confidently expected will follow from industry and other sources, a full subscription is in sight. This financing is being accomplished without the expenditure of a single dollar in commissions. This is most encouraging.

"The New Haven has no floating debt. It does not owe a dollar outside of its funded debt and its current liabilities, the latter being much less than its current assets.

"With the European loan financed, it has no maturities of consequence before 1927, except car trust loans from the government fall due. These government loans, in so far as they can be satisfactorily capped, run upon maturity. The outlook is for an increased surplus in 1925 if present business indications can be relied upon.

"The bill for the reduction of interest on government loans favorably passed last week by Mr. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, will if passed by Congress decrease the company's fixed charges $1,150,000, per year and correspondingly increase its income. In last ten years company has spent more than $65,000,000 in improving its roadway and structures and increasing its equipment, which result is best so quickened the movement of its traffic that it is finding its business more satisfactory with 6000 fewer cars, lessening the expense of operation and cutting down the cost of car hire."

A $10 contract was American Telephone's first cash.

President Walter S. Gifford, Salem and Harvard man, who has just taken over the reins of office, leads a company that is peculiarly a New England industrial marvel.

In 1876, the National Bell Telephone Company adopted Bell 'tele-phones. For it was only a year previous that the voice had been first transmitted over the wire.

No one then realized that the company which had as its president, W. H. Forbes, vice-president, George L. Bradley, and general manager, Theodore N. Vail, was destined to evolve into the world's premier public utility company—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

In 1876 bankers and men of money first heard of the wire between Boston and Cambridge as private telegraph lines over which Bell and Watson held conversations, but regarded the transmission of voices over the wire as a joke.

It was in 1877, that the first telephone wire was installed between Charles William's home in Somerville and Boston. Boston papers took note of this and the following day a Mr. Emery, a stranger from Charlestown, wandered into the Bell office and suggested that he wanted to lease a couple of telephones at the nominal rate of $10 each per year. This was the first cash the telephone company took in.

S. Cast Iron Pipe rose 1¾ to 17⅝ on reports of the clearing up of accumulated dividends on the preferred by advancing 4¾ points to a record top at 170¾.

Further accumulation of the oil shares reflected the general advance in crude prices, Marland assuming the leadership of the group by advancing 3¼ points and Amerada, the highest price in over a year.

Chicago & Eastern Illinois preferred moved up 7 points and American Sugar Refining, General Electric, American Can, Rock Island, Beech Magneto and Whites were added the list of stocks to advance a point or more.

Walworth and Warren Bros. Active in Boston Market

Walworth and Warren Bros. issues were active in trading today on the Boston Stock Exchange as slightly higher prices ruled.

Bingham Mines and Utah-Apex, the feature issues of the past few days, continued well bought.

On the big board New Haven sold up fractionally. This railroad applied today to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue $2,000,000 in 6 per cent bonds to pay off a like amount of indebtedness which falls due April 1 next.

CHEMICALS ARE STRONG

The market for drugs and chemicals reflect a generally strong position.

In spite of the fact that the introduction of the oedilver oil in Norway and Sweden has taken all over the price is higher today than it was a year ago. "Drug & Chemical Markets" says this week: "This is due primarily to the tremendous increase in demand for the oil this year, which is the greatest deficiency diseases.

The high vitamin content of cod liver oil discovered a big increase in use by the American medical profession. Where under circumstances for six months prior to the 1924 bumper production would have meant practically a 50 per cent. carryover into the 1925 season, the beginning of fishing off the Norwegian coast this year will probably see no surplus oil on hand.

Outside of higher prices for cod liver oil gelatine and ipecac have advanced. Oil of orange wood continues very scarce. Cascara sagrada back is firm. Ergot is strong at higher prices. Boric acids have advanced. A price war in acetone continues to depress the market. Citric products are firmer after the 50 per cent. overproduction today. All mercurials are reported slated for an advance. Further clean-up of chemic stocks have forced the price lower.

$34,000,000 GIVEN BY CITIES SERVICE

Approximately $34,000,000 in stocks and cash will be contributed by the Cities Service Co. to common stockholders on March 1 through a redemption of scrip dividends which the company has been issuing for the last few years. Of this amount $16,000,000 will be in cash. At the same time regular monthly dividends will be resumed on the common stock at the rate of ½ per cent. in cash and ¼ per cent. in stocks.

Stockholders at their annual meeting in April will be asked to approve a split-up of common stock on the basis of five shares for one.

NEW HAVEN ROAD TO FIGHT COMPETING BUS LINES

Providence, Jan. 23.—Aggressive action against bus lines is the policy of the New Haven Railroad, said Vice-President Arthur F. Russell at the sixth annual meeting of the Rhode Island Textile Association in the Providence Biltmore Hotel.

The New Haven will leave no stone unturned to eliminate unfair and unwarranted competition, he said. "Unless the rights of the railroad are protected, service is bound to be curtailed, possibly to be restored, only after a dangerous experiment has overloaded the highways and proved that anything short of a well organized transportation is destined to utter failure."

BOSTON AMERICAN

Largest Evening Circulation in New England—January 23, 1925

A paper for the family—Reliable, entertaining, fearless.

"Y," of Course!

The People of an Appreciative City Will Be GLAD to Do Something for the Young Men's Christian Association.

All it should be necessary to say about the spirited "drive" now going on in Boston is that the "Y" needs $138,000.

That the Young Men's Christian Association fills a place in the life of this great city that could be filled by no other organization, that it performs a tremendous work for Greater Boston and for Massachusetts, is cheerfully admitted.

The Y. M. C. A. ministers to the spiritual, intellectual, social and physical needs of young men.

The boy from the country making his first venture upon city life can have no better friend.

The Boston "Y" is 12 per cent. short of the amount necessary to complete its budget for the new year. It has 16,000 members. THEY contribute approximately 88 per cent. of the expenses.

W. Irving Bullard is commander-in-chief of the forces which are rounding up the needed funds. Everyone who knows Mr. Bullard, who has observed his splendid work in similar good causes, knows the drive cannot fail.

But, where do YOU stand?

Do you KNOW the "Y"? Know Northeastern University, the Y. M. C. A. educational department, with its [illegible] students?

Worthy of support, are they not?

BE READY, and BE THANKFUL for the opportunity to give to such a splendid work for Boston as that of the Young Men's Christian Association.

Future of the Elevated

Five to Four Division of a Special Committee of the Legislature Confusing to a Long-Suffering Public Which Wants to Be Fair and Prudent

Having devoted months to a study of the questions of control, finances and equipment of the Boston Elevated Railway Company, a committee made up of nine members of the Legislature has filed not one but TWO reports.

FIVE of the nine committeemen recommend further study.

FOUR OTHERS would have the Legislature vote NOW to continue public control TWENTY YEARS BEYOND 1928.

At least four of the nine legislators who make these so widely divergent recommendations are lawyers. Several of them are lawmakers of long experience.

If THEY cannot agree, after such an inquiry, with every opportunity and every facility for getting at the facts, the average citizen will not feel like indulging in snap judgment.

Until the eleventh hour, no one knew WHICH of these reports was to carry the signature of the NINTH committeeman, and so go before the General Court with the prestige and dignity of a "majority" recommendation.

Representative Coyne of Dorchester, the ninth man, decided at the last minute to join the four who recommend further study.

BOTH reports are before the Legislature. They will be referred first to the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs and the Committee on Street Railways, sitting for this purpose as a single board.

There will be public hearings. We shall hear from the nine committeemen and from other experts.

The present fixed term of public control of the Elevated continues under the law until July 1, 1928. It will extend beyond that date INDEFINITELY unless two years previously—that is, on or before July 1, 1926—the Legislature says otherwise.

The real Boston is a mighty big city. Its people want adequate street-car service. Many or them feel that they are not getting it and that they are paying too much for the sort of service they ARE getting.

THEY do the strap-hanging. THEY pay the bill. Now is the time to place the FACTS before them.

What SHALL be done about the Elevated?

Myles Standish, There He Stands!

Without a Head and Minus One Arm

Sixty-six thousand visitors, representing all the States of the Union and most of the countries of Europe, visited the Pilgrim town of Duxbury last Summer and, having observed what remains of the monument to Myles Standish, went away with no high opinion of Massachusetts.

The effigy of the gallant though timid soldier who sent young John Alden to Miss Priscilla Mullins has been minus a head, one arm and its sword ever since it was struck by lightning, in the Summer of 1922.

Homer Loring, who now is trying to put the Boston & Maine Railroad on a profitable basis, was commissioner of administration and finance.

Finding in the budget an item of $5,000 for repairs to the Duxbury monument, Mr. Loring struck it out and suggested a "bronze tablet."

Duxbury has been red hot over that recommendation, ever since.

Now comes an individual with an offer to repair the monument at his own expense and, although the gentleman's patriotic benevolence is appreciated, THAT makes Plymouth County mad.

The matter is before the Ways and Means Committee of the Legislature. It will be further aired at a public hearing, on February 25th.

Myles Standish was never the man to speak for himself, even when he had a head. It does seem as though he were worth a $5,000 investment by the Commonwealth, on account of the poem if for no other reason. The headless, armless and swordless figure at Duxbury is poor advertising.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By HELEN ROWLAND

Helen Rowland

BEHOLD, my Daughter, how easily satisfied is the heart of a woman.

For lo, she demandeth only that a man shall permit her to make an idol and a hero of him with one hand — and to make a fool of him with the other.

That he shall tell her nothing but the truth—and at the same time vow that she is the ONLY woman he hath ever enjoyed kissing.

That he shall be strong enough to have made a career for himself in the past—and yet weak enough to permit her to map out his future for him.

That he shall be the sun of her existence—and at the same time revolve about her with all the adoration of a satellite.

That he shall coddle and spoil her as though she were a baby—and yet permit her to mother him, reform him, and "uplift" him.

That he shall kiss her with the perfect kissing of a precisted lover—and yet with all the enthusiasm and eagerness of a novice.

That he shall regard her love as "priceless"—and yet cover her with pearls and orchids, and never take head for the taximeter.

That he shall indulge her whims, overlook her caprices, dry her tears, laugh at her follies—and at the same time kneel down and worship her as a "Higher Being."

That he shall trust her absolutely—and at the same time be madly jealous of every man who casteth eyes upon her.

That he shall hearken patiently while she confesseth the "secrets of her soul"—and yet regard her as a fascinating mystery.

That he shall "understand her perfectly"—and yet continue to believe her the One Flawless Woman in the World.

That she shall be the last woman in his life—and at the same time the first woman he hath ever loved!

Verily, verily, how easily satisfied is the "starving soul" of woman, which asketh little here below, save a few slight miracles!

And wherefore hath NO man ever succeeded in reading her heart and gratifying her desires? For they are SO simple!

SELAH!

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Street Parades.

Editor Boston American:

You invite discussion "which streets for parades," and say "most of us like parades." We do, particularly when it is a military parade or a circus, but you cannot enjoy a parade with any degree of satisfaction unless you have space wherein you may breathe and not be crushed or tortured. Down town where streets are narrow and irregular, is a poor place for such exhibitions and there is always grave danger in case of fire or accidents. Not alone is business hampered by the crowds along the line of march, but we must bear in mind that thousands of wage earners find it hard to go to and from their homes or restaurants in the hour allowed for lunch owing to the roped streets in which to give the paraders right of way. You have a tremendous number of people who have business in Boston every day and who have to make connections with subway and trains, and deserve consideration. I suggest Berkeley street as a fit and proper place and a good starting point for parades to assemble, with Columbus avenue and Commonwealth ave. for the marchers. What better or more favorable ground for a parade than Columbus avenue to Massachusetts avenue and thence to Commonwealth avenue, where we have good air, lots of space, pleasant surroundings, very little chance of congestion, and freedom of any kind.

HOME FOR EX-KINGS IN ENGLAND

By DR. FRANK CRANE

NEWS has recently come that the estate of Wood Norton, in England, has been purchased to be used as a home for ex-kings.

To many this will come as a great relief as its [illegible] fragrant with all the romance of exile splendor.

Society is gradually getting rid of kings, but there is a certain sentiment in treating well those who remind us of the past.

At Wood Norton there came to shelter the Duke of [illegible]leans, head of the House of Bourbon, King of France, if claims had been recognized.

The estate has priceless exterior and interior [illegible] including the beautiful wrought iron gates which adorned the Royal Palace at Versailles, and which, with their surroundings, might have given magnificence to the home of some war profiteer.

In this age when democracy has risen like a [illegible] the world it is well to preserve, if only as a relic, tangible evidence of those wonderful days that are gone.

Here at Wood Norton, the Princess Louise of Orleans was married to Prince Charles of Bourbon. Every royal house in Europe was represented except Germany.

The Duke of Orleans was a figure, tall, with carefully brushed beard, not easily forgotten. He was strangely handsome and usually wore a light gray frock coat and a hat of the latest model.

The name of the purchaser of Wood Norton has not been revealed, but there is reason to believe that the old Bourbon home has fallen into the hands of an admirer of France.

If Chequers has been given to the nation as a home for premiers, Wood Norton may well be preserved as a home for royal exiles.

England has sheltered Anarchists, like the Prince Kropotkin. Why not monarchs whose only fault may be that they do not fit in to the social evolution of the age?

GIANT TELESCOPES DESCRIBED

By Garrett P. Serviss

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

I AM asked whether the Lick telescope is the largest and best to date; and whether one with a larger objective, say six or seven feet in diameter would be of any material help to astronomy, if it could be built.

The celebrity of the Lick telescope on account of the great leap in size which its construction represented, and also on account of the remarkable work which began to be performed with it from its opening in 1888, and which all the world talked about, remains so great that many persons still are under the impression that it is the largest telescope in existence.

In fact, while it remains one of the most powerful and useful of modern telescopes, it is no longer, by any means, the largest. It has an object glass thirty-six inches in diameter, or just three feet.

The Yerkes telescope of the University of Chicago has an object glass forty inches in diameter; while the great Hooker telescope, opened on Mt. Wilson, in 1919, has a mirror one hundred inches in diameter, or no less than eight feet and a third! This is, to date, the largest telescope in existence, and its optical qualities are excellent.

It will be noticed that the Yerkes and Lick telescopes are both refractors—a refractor being the name given to a telescope which uses all object glass, or lens, to gather and bring to a focus the rays of light from a star or other object examined, while the name reflector is given to a telescope which uses a concave mirror, instead of an object glass.

With both of these classes of telescope the diameter of the objective—object-lens or object-mirror—is the most important factor in determining its power of vision.

In fact, a direct comparison can be made between a telescope and the human eye, with reference to the amount of light which it is capable of bringing to a focus from a given luminous object.

This amount varies with the square of the diameter of the pupil of the eye in one case and with the square of the diameter of the telescope objective in the other.

Now, the average pupil is about one-fifth of an inch; that is 1-180th the diameter of the Lick telescope objective. The square of 180 is 32,400, so that the telescope exceeds the unaided eye more than 32,000 times in its ability to collect light from a star. In other words, the star should appear 32,000 times as bright in the telescope as when viewed with the naked eye.

Inasmuch as the pupil of the eye expands at night, it is probable that the difference is not as great as these figures indicate, but in any event the light-grasping power of the telescope exceeds that of the eye many thousand times.

Using the same figures as above, the Yerkes telescope collects [illegible] times more light than the eye, and the Hooker telescope [illegible] more than the eye.

Another consideration which reduces these figures is that in the eye the light gets through only the glass, or is reflected from the back mirror, on that again the eye is very poor in comparison; but when all is said the enormous superiority of the telescope is self-evident.

Now, just how does the telescope utilize the advantage which it has?

This picture shows the immense advantage in size of the Hooker telescope over the Yerkes, its rivals, the Lick and Vienna Telescopes.

This picture shows the immense advantage in size of the Hooker telescope over the Yerkes, its rivals, the Lick and Vienna Telescopes.

It does it with the aid of the [illegible] piece, composed of [illegible] lenses, which magnify the image formed at the focus of the object-glass, and which [illegible] as a pocket magnifier may magnifies any object looked through it.

The more light the [illegible] grasps the brighter the image formed, and the higher the power the image the greater the power that may be employed because magnification "uses up" light by spreading out the image.

Another immense advantage in having a large objective, and bringing a great quantity of light to a focus from a star, is that it enables the [illegible] of the telescope to be used for photographic purposes. A picture on a sensitive, [illegible] cessively faint objects, [illegible] nebulae, which may be [illegible] visible to the eye, even through the telescope. This is the chief reason why the Hooker telescope is [illegible] that a new one.

It is quite possible that a telescope than the Hooker will [illegible] may yet be made, but [illegible] of such a size as to be [illegible] used, except in a locality where the air is both very clear and steady.

ONCE-OVERS

SELF-RESTRAINT IS THE FIRST LAW OF A SUCCESSFUL DIET.

You hear a lot about this "diet" and that one, how to grow thin and still be able to eat everything in sight, portions and food and how to take it.

But some of those who talk most about dieting are actual gluttons when it comes to everyday eating.

Holiday festivities show that some of them favor dieting for one but themselves and what they especially want to eat.

If you have abused your stomach since you were a child by eating all kinds of food and you wanted and then took medicine to counteract any ill effects, instead of governing your appetite, then is the time when the doctor lays down the law.

If you are past all hope in a matter of self-government and promise to abstain from this and that, but a taste now and then will undo all the doctor hopes for.

If you know that a certain thing is dynamite for you, play with it with a fire which is sure to end disastrously.
